The University is a complex experience comprised of many. Many form the substructure producing the basis of such a complex. Many are a part of a school year marked with fluctuations; the high points and the low. Many feel sorrow, defeat, exhilaration — emotions common to all.

Within the complex of many however, exists the single entity. He is a part of the underlying substructure, a unique part — known more to himself than others. He is the creator of the fluctuating highs and lows and he too feels the sorrow, the exhilaration. But as much as the individual is a part of the complex experience, it is his uniqueness, his individuality which rises above the complex and becomes each individual's character.

For though he as a person may partake in the "ups and downs"; it is his "ups and downs" that become important. Though he may feel sorrow and defeat with the many, it is a feeling unique to him alone.

It is this individual, the one within the many, that makes up the University's complex.

MOVING IN

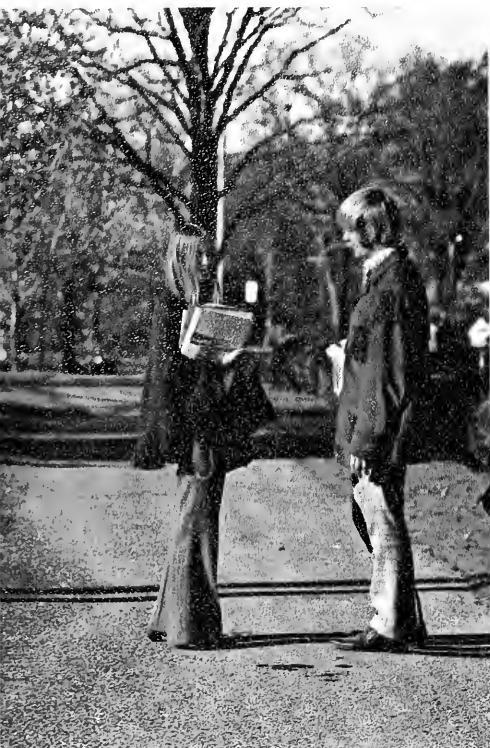

Summer was over — the lazy days of lying endlessly in the sun and the long nights of parties stretching into the wee hours of the morn, we placed behind us. The last long weekend of the season, Labor Day, was past and Amherst once again prepared for the return of its 18,000 students. They came in cars, VW buses, and U-Hauls as the generation on the "go" was moving, moving in to school. Lots and driveways became impenetrable as people milled about aimlessly, unloading suitcases, boxes, and bags of every shape and size; their contents containing each individual's life style for the next nine months. Dorms, apartments, and houses were crowded with the influx of former residents and new people establishing themselves. The campus was alive again, as each of us envisioned the year's traumas and ecstasies unfolding before us.

INTERLUDE . . . RENEW OLD FRIENDSHIPS,

"Adjusting to the University, its bigness, its massive numbers of people is initially horrifying. Your individuality becomes stifled as your quest "to fit in" overrides yourself. Just as your niche seems to be found, the onslaught of academics buries your quest and overrides your fear. It seemed to me to be a frustrating cycle – then you reach for yourself, and somehow, adjustment is there."

TIME FOR A BRIEF SERENITY IN THE SOLACE OF ONE'S OWN IDENTITY.

"I've been here for awhile, and it seems to me that the University consists of two worlds. Each is different and separate but they occupy the same place. One is demanding, filled with core requirements, IBM cards, and reading lists. The other is challenging, containing hectic social life, people, friends and even some genuinely concerned pros.

Sometimes I need the demand, but I prefer the challenge."

The student number — the University's means to facilitate the procedure of registering a student population in one day. Lines — the deterrence to upset the means and frustrate the population.

Registration day? Defined — a student's attempt to take courses in fulfillment of University and major requirements; satiate his curiosity with an exciting elective.

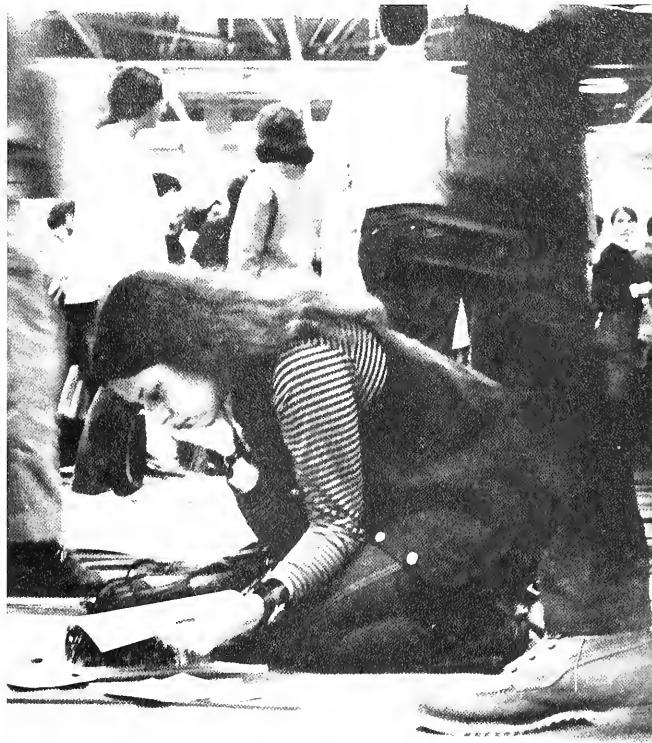

REGISTRATION

Futility? Defined — a student's attempt to substitute required courses, filled through upperclass preference and seek out dull electives, the interesting ones flagged months before.

Solution? Defined — ?

BACHELOR'S DEGREE WITH
CONCENTRATION

The University complex is designed to be the center of academic learning. Unfortunately, there exist those individuals who ignore the design and provide their own intent; unfortunate in the sense that the individual's intent overrides the educational environment others desire. Such was the instance in the case of the bomb scares this past fall.

As students poured out of classrooms and dormitories in the middle of the night, emotions were mixed. At first it seemed amusing that classes were dismissed half way through the period, but as the number of threats increased, amusement turned to exasperation. The student did not appreciate his film history course being halted in the middle of a movie for the third week in a row, and the individual did not enjoy dragging his body out from the warmth of snug beds to face the cold outside.

WHY?

PEOPLE . . .

ISN'T THAT WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT?

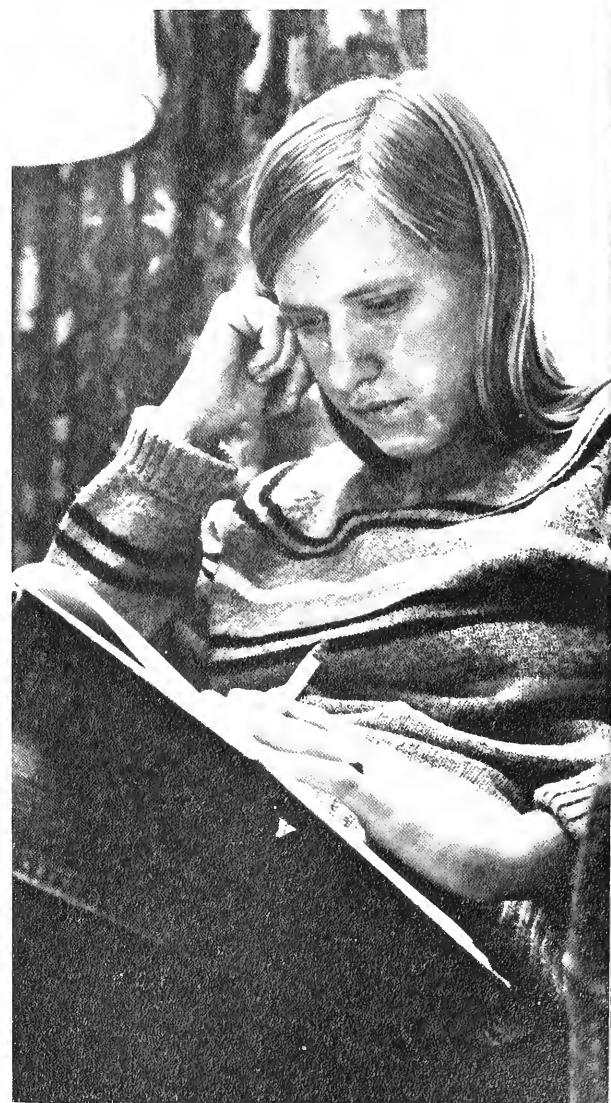

THEY, THEM, I, ME, YOU ...

WE . . .

US!

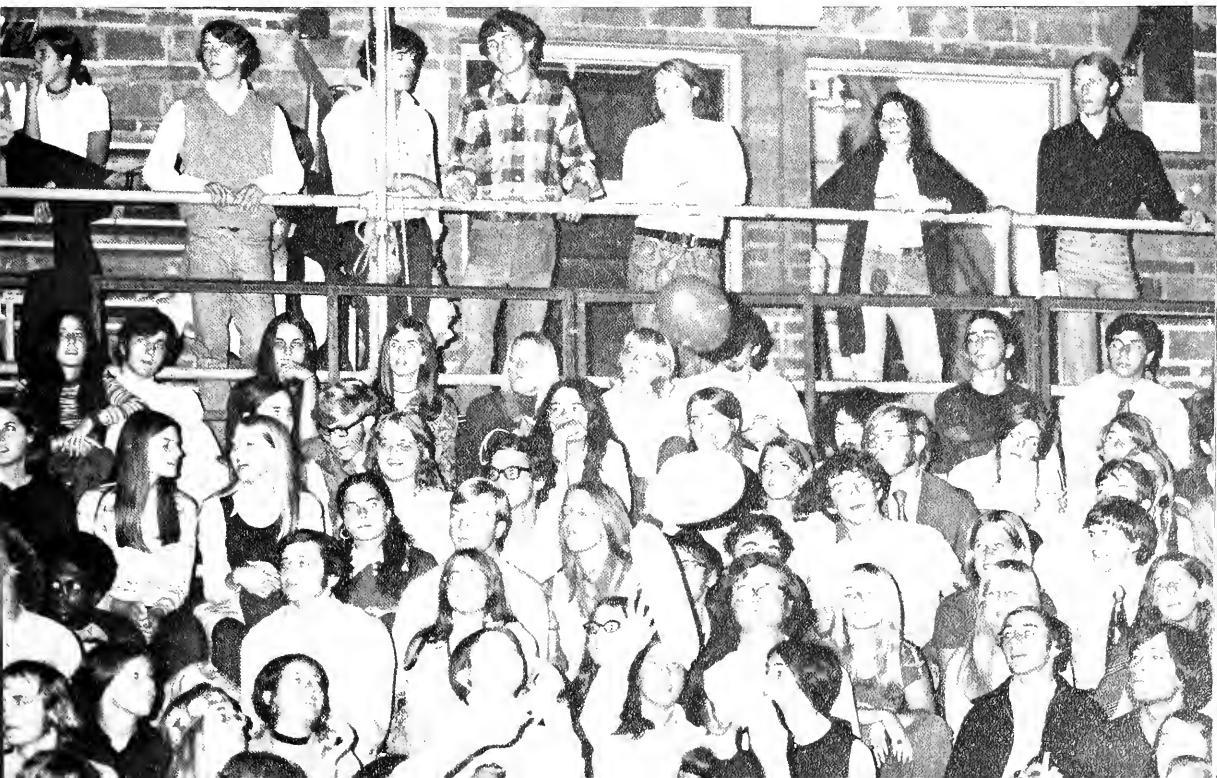

I am one; with a thought, an idea, I become myself.

I am one; with another in expressive solitude, we become two.

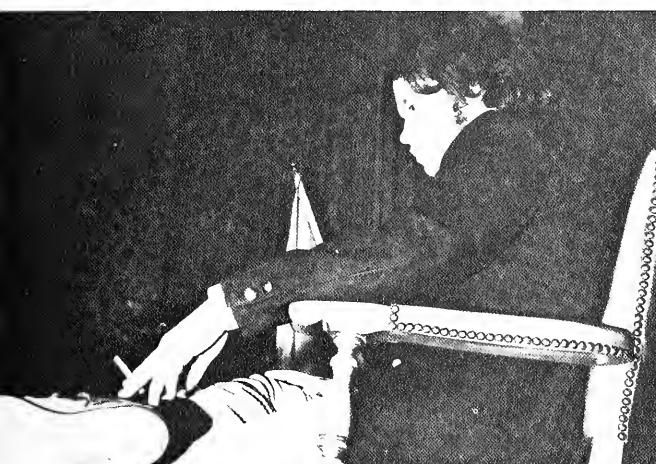

I am one; with the shared emotions of others, we become many.

"... Certainly you have to be a moron to think that the taxpayers of this state will continue to appropriate large sums of money, money which is desperately needed for other purposes, if the University does not stay open to provide the education for which the money is voted. It is my sober judgement that this University cannot long survive unless we take immediate steps to put our house in order . . ."

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS INDEX CONVOCATION 1970 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS INDEX CONVOCATION 1970 UJ

The University Convocation for 1970-71 was Chancellor Tippo's opportunity to inform the students and faculty of his views and intentions concerning issues crucial to this campus. He spoke out at length on vandalism, theft, security, strike policy and apathy. Although the Convocation was held during classes, the Student Union ballroom was filled to capacity. Attendance and attention fell off a bit, however, as the Chancellor's lengthy speech taxed the endurance of his audience.

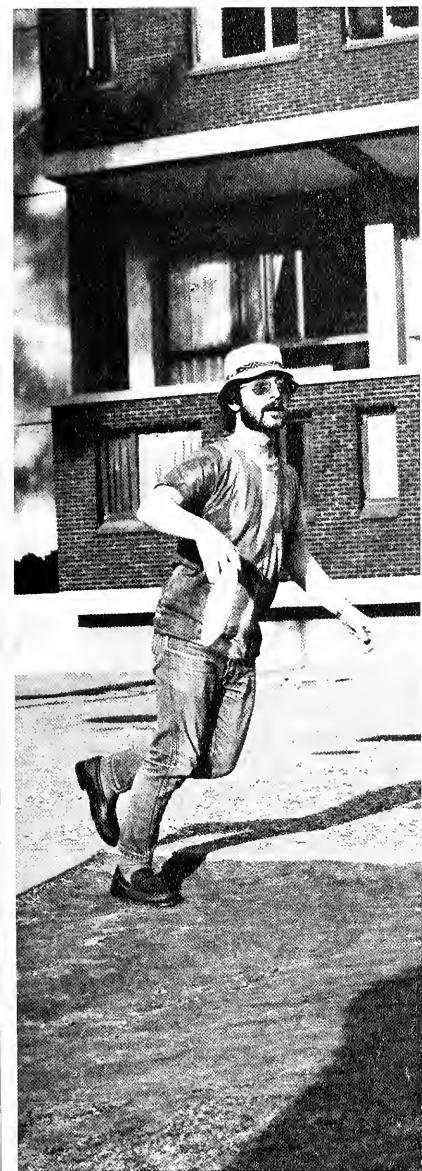

“. . . Surely any thinking person must realize that if we do not bring in the police in the event of a serious disturbance, the matter will be taken out of our hands. This may lead to tragedy as it has on other campuses . . .” “. . . We must give greater emphasis to our responsibilities of teaching. Students demand it, taxpayers and legislators demand it, the logic of the times demand it. We must put our house in order, lest we have imposed on us from outside severe, rigid and educationally unsound restrictions . . .”

GOOD OR BAD; BASKETBALL GAMES, CONCERTS, FRISBEE FLIPPING, OR DATES, THE

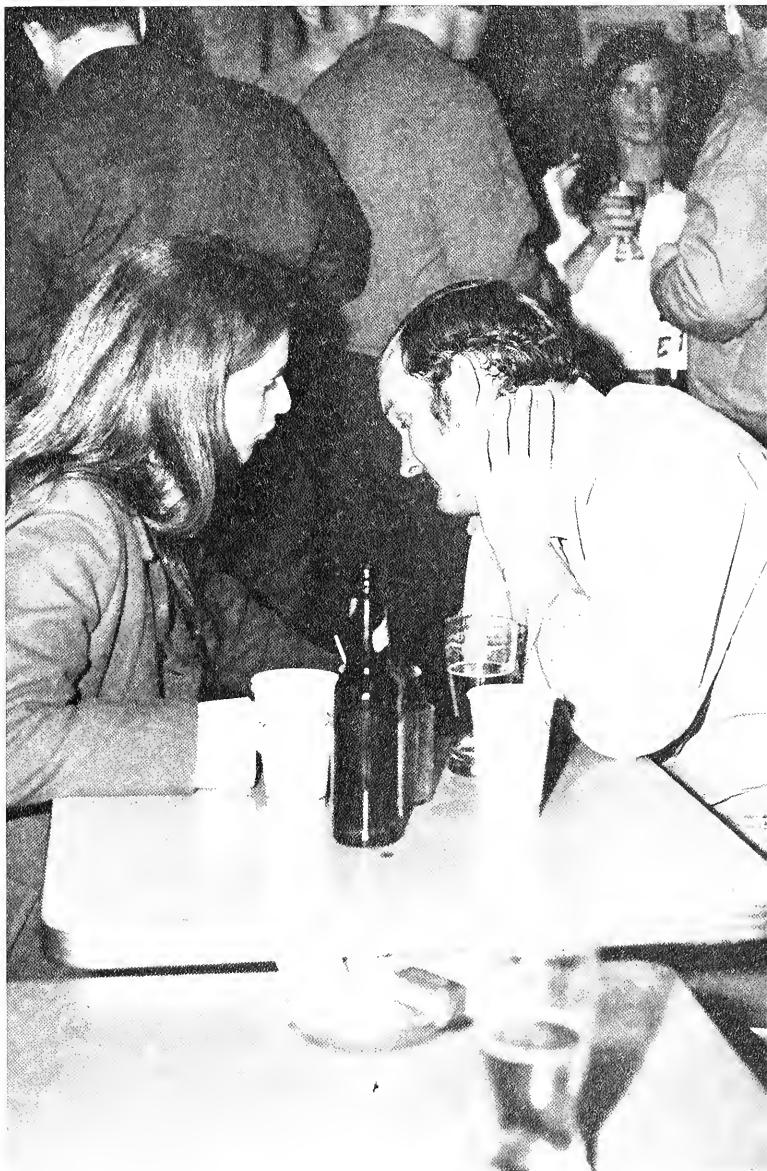

The basketball team lost only one at the cage, but, that fact only made the defeat more poignant.

THINGS THAT HAPPENED AFTER CLASSES WERE BEST REMEMBERED.

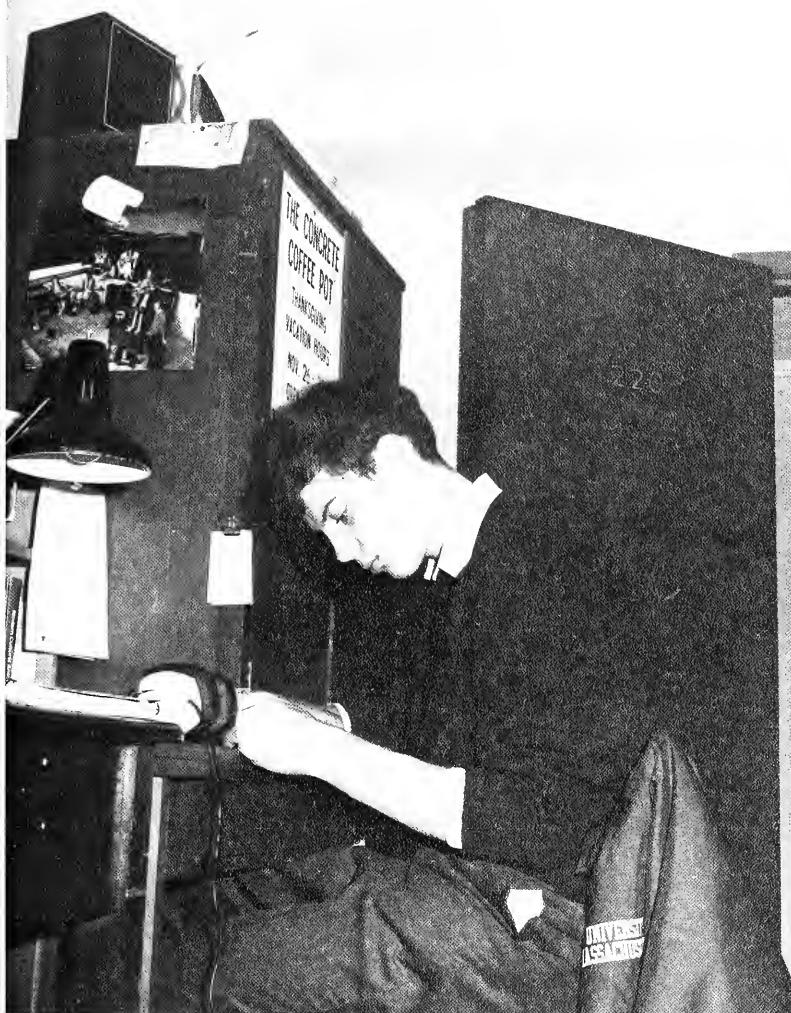

On a fall afternoon, flying frisbees compete with falling leaves for air space.

A table with a friend at Mike's made the weekends more enjoyable.

Dorm phones were always ringing. It was frustrating to chase down the hall only to find the call was for someone else. When the connection was finally made, a sort of magic occurred as two people forgot their concrete cubicles and were together.

Unless you declared yourself a misanthrope, quiet moments alone in your room were difficult to obtain. But at least it was your room — or at least you and your roommates.

A change of life style. A break from the chaos of dormitory living. A group of people unified in a house through common interest, desire, and purpose.

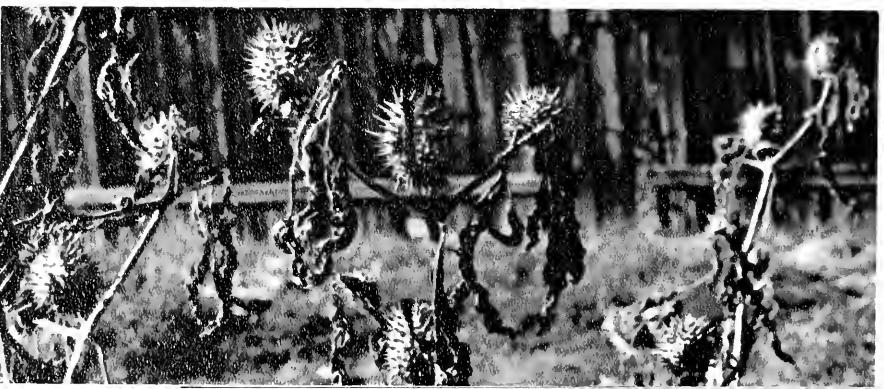

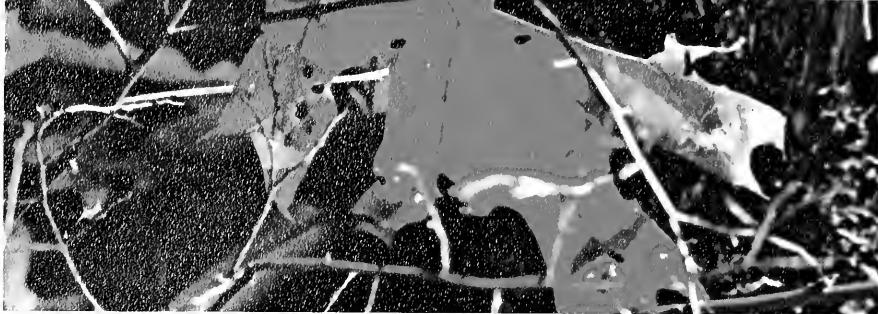

The Greek system encompasses a fairly large number of students and serves the campus in both a social and cultural context. The in years past the system has attracted many more students, presently it seems to be waning.

The advantages in living the Greek system offered (freedom from the restraints of curfews and open houses and the liberal and relaxing atmosphere of the house) are now being boldly challenged by the leniency of coed dorm life and apartment living.

Despite its apparent "slackening off", many people still find security and warm friendships within the system of Greeks. Friendships prove lasting, experiences unlimited, and good times infinite as people partake of but one of several modes of University life.

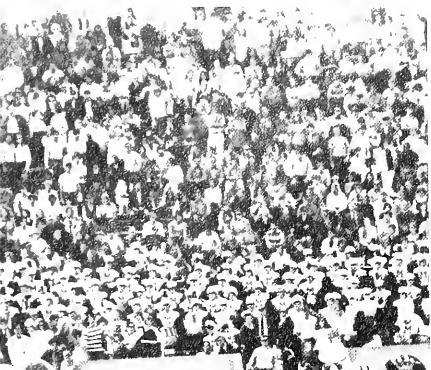

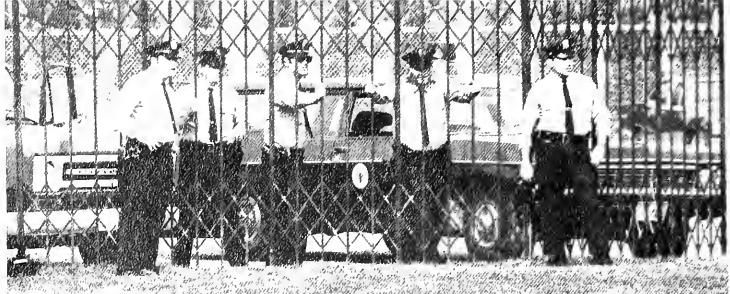

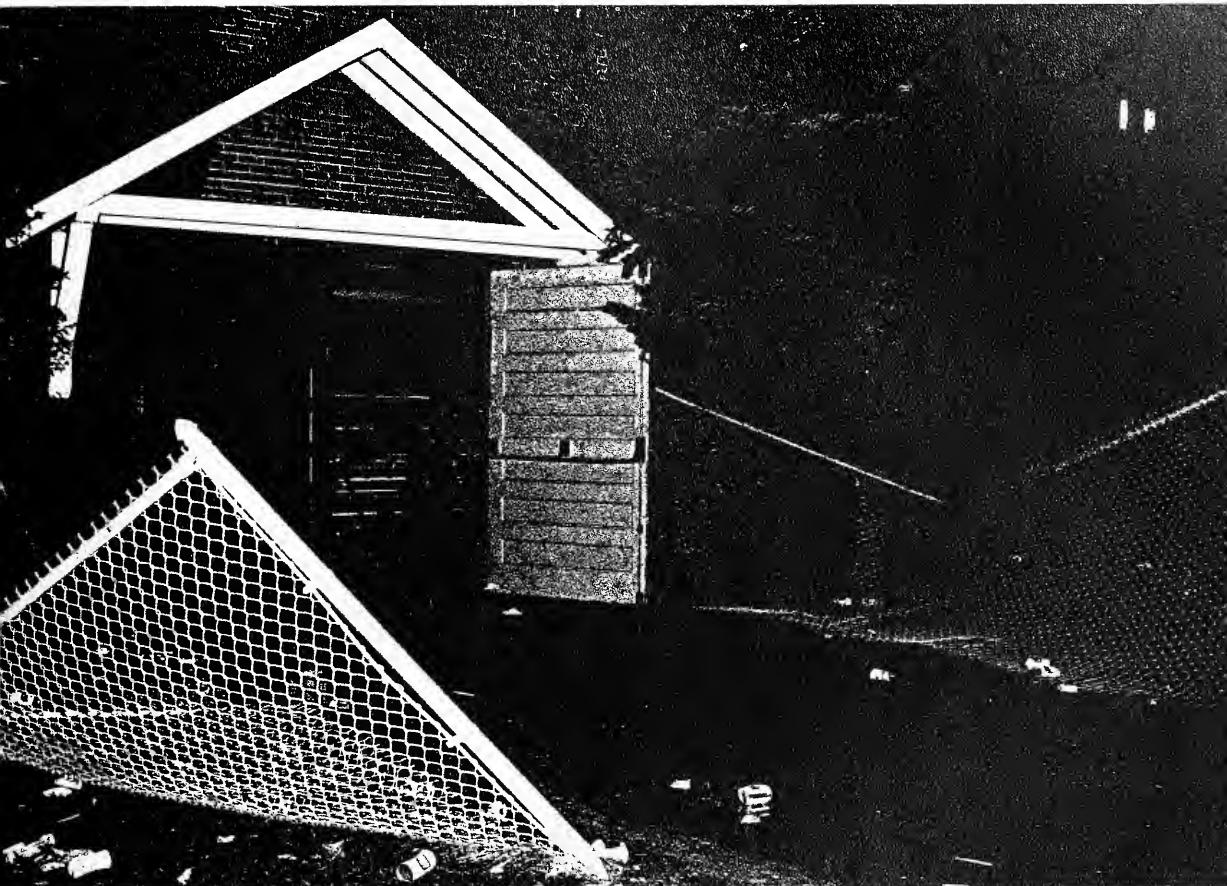

ALL HOMECOMING FALL HOMECOMING 1971 FALL HOMECOMING FALL HOMECOMING FALL HOMECOMING

For the Redmen, the crowning of Queen Penny Falconer, '73, a nursing major from Waltham, was a highlight of the Homecoming game. Our luckless squad outplayed the Huskies, only to watch UConn turn breaks into points and manage a 20-20 tie.

Homecoming, 1970 was a sad and desperate attempt at continuing tradition. Something intangible was missing, and people seemed to realize it. Of course, there was still the bonfire and float parade, the concerts and the football game, the Homecoming Queen and her Court. But, with the addition of vandalism and gate-crashing, a tension was created which laid a pall over the University community.

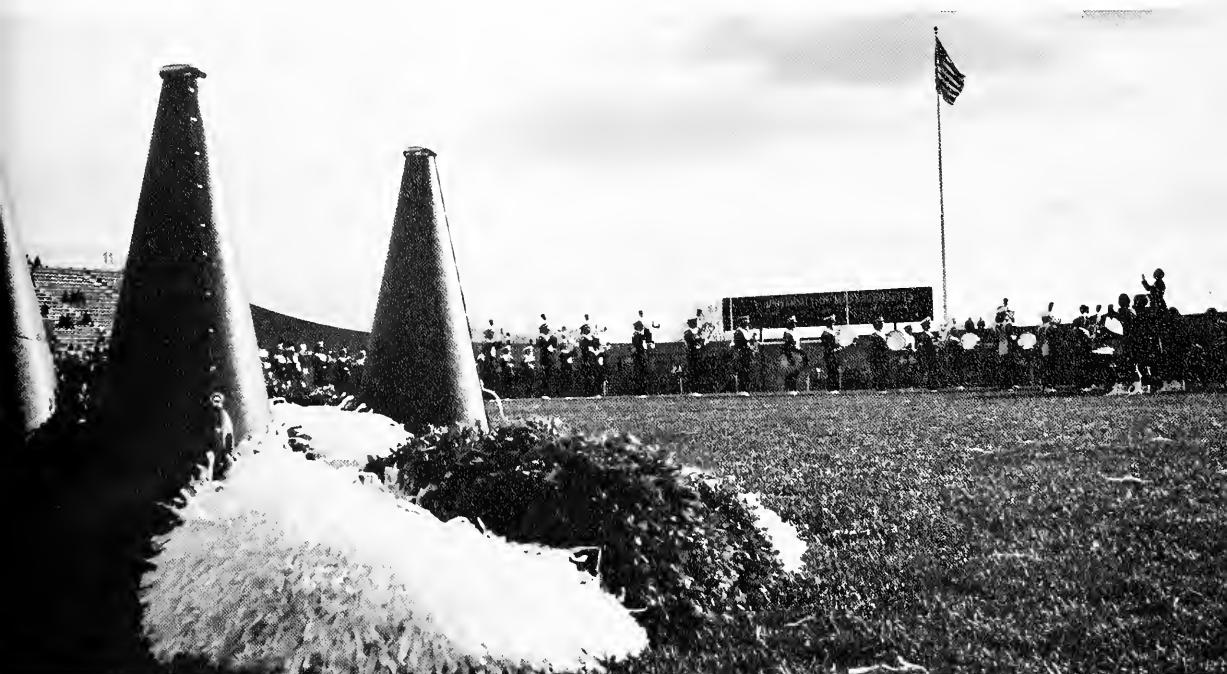

The traditional float parade: tons of crepe paper and chicken wire fashioned into a hurried work of confidence. Beat 'em! All greek houses enter floats each year, as do some dorms. This year, Sigma Delta Tau and Tau Epsilon Phi decided that their float money could be put to better use by contributing it to a non-profit group dedicated to bringing war-injured Vietnamese children to this country for medical treatment. These two houses collected from spectators the night of the parade, and Lambda Delta Phi and Butterfield Dorm also contributed.

PARTICIPATION IN THE TRADITIONAL TRAPPINGS OF HOMECOMING DWINDLES.

Halloween provided an opportunity for some welcome frivolity. One campus sorority proved you could have fun while serving others, by sponsoring a Halloween party for area orphans. The mutual fun was made more satisfying by the knowledge that you had made someone else's load just a little lighter.

The annual pumpkin bash at Webster was well received, with everyone indulging in a costume "put-on".

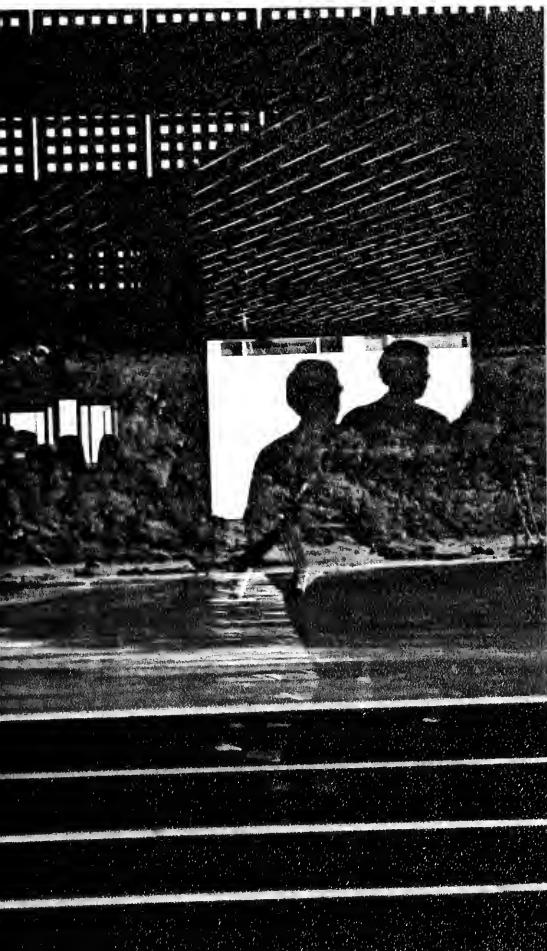

The middle of a semester can seem as lonely as the night-long vigil of a lamppost. In a strange place, survival requires friends, resourcefulness, and humor. Sometimes a paper hat and feather are all that's needed to break the monotony.

The days went on — they always managed to, they seemed to need no reason for beginning and end. The people contained within such days found themselves not so easily contented. Each required that reason and consequently, each sought his own.

Some chose to content themselves in reflective learning on the union steps, while others opted to stage a comedy outside Whitman, starring "Me." There were those who found their individual reason attached to the reasons of the crowd, at the campus center. While others tried to find reason within themselves.

" . . . we have one of the largest contingent of black faculty, one of the better programs (CCEBS) and one of the finest black studies departments in the country."

The increased enrollment of black students at the University of Massachusetts has changed the complexion of the institution, enriched the cultural environment of the living and social areas, created a more cosmopolitan atmosphere on campus, and enhanced the intellectual climate of the classrooms.

Although some blacks have argued that increased racism has also accompanied the enlarged enrollment of black students, my feeling is that the opposite has occurred. On the one hand, institutional racism has declined in the sense that black students are, at least for the time being, no longer excluded from the University because of failure to meet conventional, white middle class standards of admission (In the past few years Admission officials have invoked criteria which gauge more accurately the potential and intellect of black students). On the other hand, individual race prejudices, though not significantly reduced, do not seem to be as intense or as widespread as they were when I first came to the University in 1965.

My impressions are not based on controlled empirical research, but I am of the opinion that the structural changes reflected in the racial distribution of the University (i.e., increased numbers of black students and faculty and, to a lesser extent, professional and nonprofessional staff) have had the effect of changing attitudes. These structural changes, I maintain, have helped to erase the provincial, rural, culturally deprived atmosphere that once characterized the University. This observation is consistent with the sociological proposition that as people become exposed to a structure that allows minority group participation on an equal basis with the majority group, race prejudice tends to decline.

I would argue therefore that the cries of increased racism on campus are more of a reflection of heightened awareness or growing sensibilities to problems of racial inequity than to any absolute increase in the distribution and content of racist feelings.

Although the situation for blacks on this campus is far from being a panacea, it is healthier than that found at most large state universities in the northern United States. I make this assertion because we have one of the largest contingent of black faculty, one of the better programs (CCEBS) for the higher education of black students, and one of the finest black studies departments in the country.

Whether this situation will continue to improve will depend largely on the Commonwealth's and the University's commitment to enroll and financially support denied black students. Failure to sustain this commitment not only will destroy the thrust already made to increase the higher educational opportunities for blacks, but also will rob the University of a very vital part of its recent development.

"... calm and order are not ends in themselves, and we can only hope that we are not experiencing cynicism and resignation on the part of those who would lead in the continual improvement of the university."

"I think we found last year that we were not intellectually prepared to deal with issues of war, racism, pollution, poverty and alienation."

"The task before us now is to learn what we need to know to be effective in bringing the necessary changes in ourselves and our institutions to make this a better world."

"Opportunity, help, and encouragement are available, but education is not something given to us, it is something we must stubbornly pursue individually."

Following last year's turmoil on this campus and on campuses around the nation, this year has appeared calm and orderly. But calm and order are not ends in themselves, and we can only hope that we are not experiencing cynicism and resignation on the part of those who would lead in the continual improvement of the university.

Perhaps we learned a lot last year about the role of a university in modern society. Perhaps we learned a lot about our individual situations in shaping the university and the society. Hopefully those lessons from last year are being implemented and acted upon during the apparent calm of this year.

I think we found last year that we were not intellectually prepared to deal with issues of war, racism, pollution, poverty and alienation. We did not have the depth or breadth of knowledge necessary to fully understand the causes, much less the cures, of all of those problems we raised as issues so loudly and forcefully on campus last year. We had not done our homework!

The task before us now is to learn what we need to know to be effective in bringing the necessary changes in ourselves and our institutions to make this a better world. Though no one can say just how any individual should prepare himself, it is clear that everyone must work toward something. Opportunity, help, and encouragement are available, but education is not something given to us, it is something we must stubbornly pursue individually. If the world is changed, it will be changed by those who take the responsibility of pursuing their individual education, not by those who float dilatorily through life waiting for divine inspiration.

RICHARD GARBER Distinguished Professor

"Personally, I see Physical Education as an integral part of the total University program and community, serving a large number of students through a variety of programs."

"Thomas Cureton has said that people exist at a baseboard level but have a ceiling potential. We try to have students explore that kind of potential."

". . . I believe sport is to the athlete what creating a painting or piece of sculpture to the artist or what writing or performing a piece of music is to the musician. It is a very real part of the person."

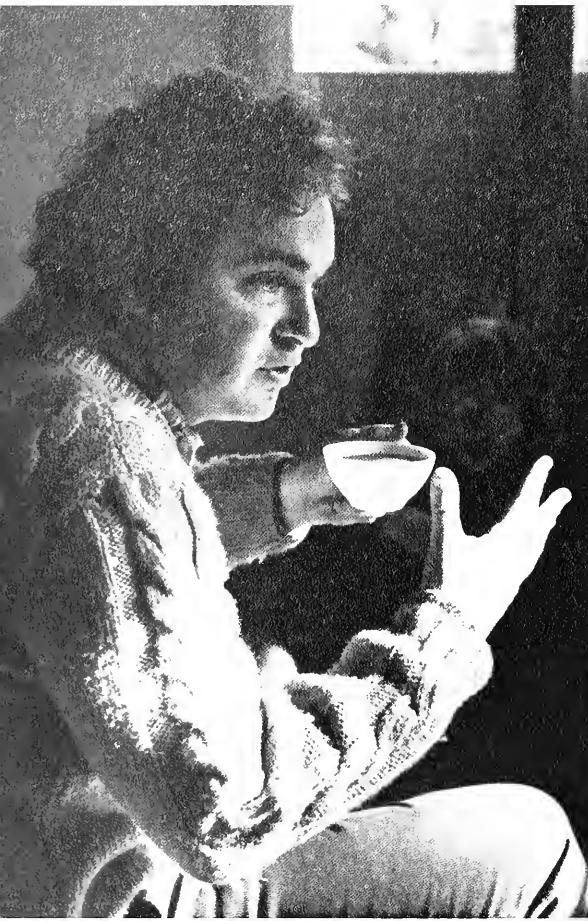

"I don't see winning as the most important thing in athletics, but see it as worthy goal and one of the possible outcomes of competition."

As varsity lacross coach I have the opportunity to deal with a rather select group of highly skilled and highly motivated students who see participation not just as a release or change of pace from daily life but rather as a very integral part of their life. To the athlete, sport is not just a pleasant sideline or diversion, it is life. Some people find this difficult to understand, but I believe sport is to the athlete what creating a painting or piece of sculpture is to the artist, or what writing or performing a piece of music is to the musician. It is a very real part of the person.

This being so, I see coaching not primarily a matter of the number of games "won or lost", but rather a tremendous opportunity to help students explore their potential, to explore their "outer limits", to be involved intensely in something that is meaningful to them. I don't see "winning" as the most "important thing" in athletics but see it as a worthy goal and one of the possible outcomes of competition. This "means" or striving for this outcome is what helps develop a man. It may sound "corny" but the rigors of athletics are very much like the rigors of life, the progression from the simple to the complex, the preparation and striving, the successes and failures, the joys of victory and the sorrows of defeat, the comradeship of being a team member, the social ideal of accepting and cooperating with a teammate on the basis of what he does, not the color of his skin, his religious faith or national background. All of these characteristics of athletics are very "lifelike."

I am proud to have been able to coach these past 16 years. I am sure we share the pride of our "won, lost" record and enjoy reflecting on past accomplishments, but the real pride or satisfaction is to see these men leading useful lives as citizens in our society in a wide variety of occupations. I would like to think that I have contributed to these men becoming healthy, happy, proud MEN.

The educational environment at a university is that part of the surrounding structure which deals with a student's formal education. On this campus that structure took many forms, ranging from the traditional course (lectures, tests, and a final) to modular credits. Instructors held classes in their own homes in an effort to escape the often stifling atmosphere of the classroom. Off-campus excursions to museums and factories, as well as off-campus seminars were commonplace. Students assumed roles and acted out plays while trying to facilitate their own learning.

On the following pages we present these forms, issues and structures of the educational environment through the eyes and words of the individual students.

The new Campus Center contributed to the educational environment by providing a haven for strung-out students to read the Collegian, study, and/or sleep.

ECOLOGY AND EDUCATION

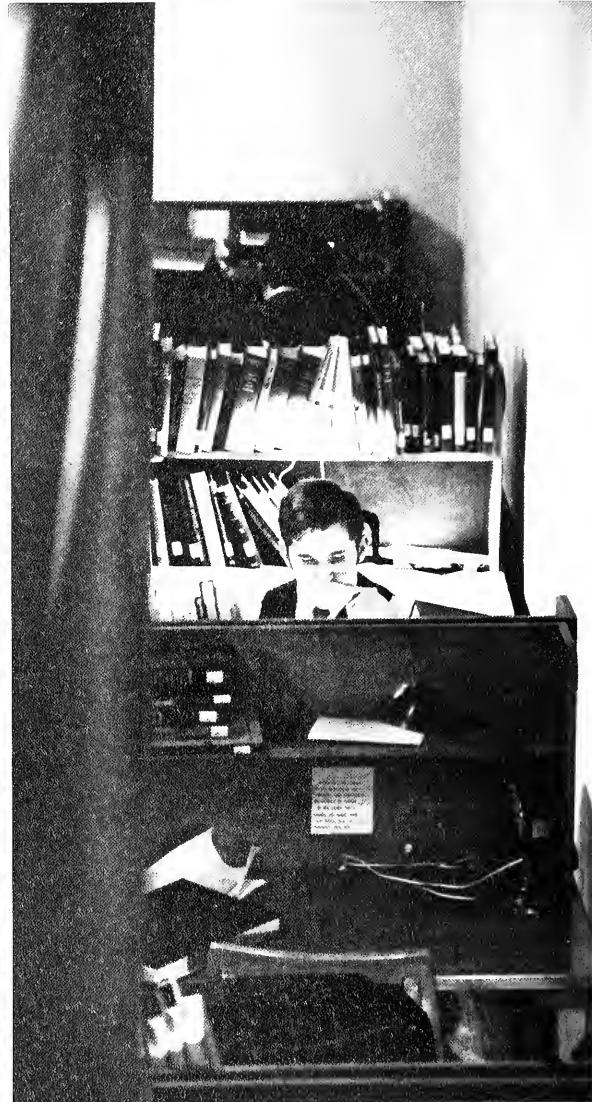

Concerned with the rampant construction on campus, students took it on themselves to check the amount of pollutants being washed into the campus pond.

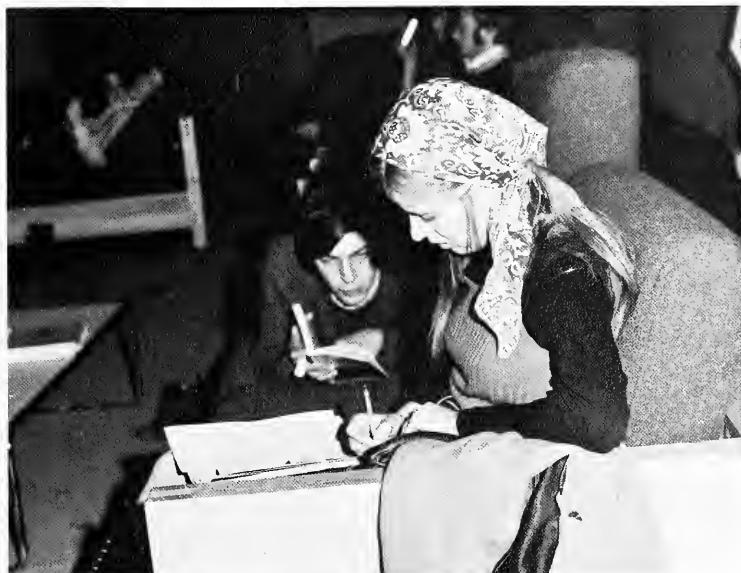

Free University City, struggling to avoid extinction, established micro-teaching classrooms in inflatable tents. Subjects covered a wide range of areas not found in the traditional University curriculum.

The academic environment also showed signs of improvement. Students and Faculty found that many beneficial exchanges can occur outside of the classroom.

"That there should one man die ignorant who had capacity for knowledge, this I call tragedy."

Sartor Resartus, BKI

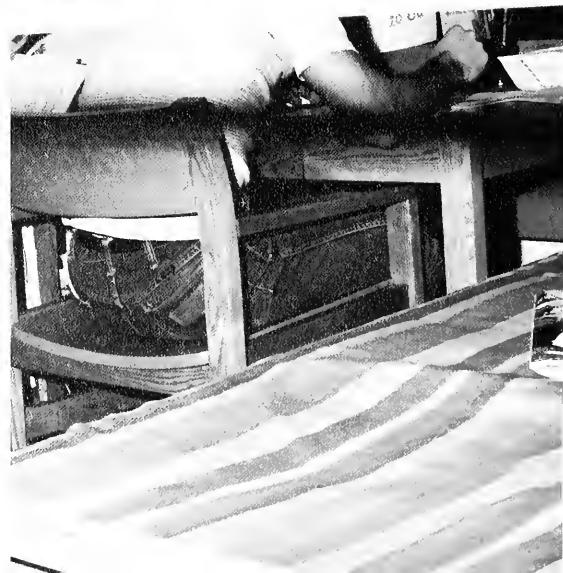

As friends drifted off to the Pub for a beer or sat noisily about their rooms with the stereo blaring, we sought out the silent places. A corner of the world set aside for us alone, devoid of chaotic activity; a private niche reserved in our attempt to achieve self knowledge. A place to be alone and cram, a place to be near people, but know you don't have to talk to them.

The study hour — a time to load our minds with statistics, theories, and formulas to be explored into regurgitation at some later testing date. Perhaps it is the one time that all the facts and ideas fall into their logical order and we discover creation.

They say you can understand something if you can teach it to someone else — but what if you can't? Is this really what education is all about?

Life in the dorms isn't all parties, togetherness, and fun. Moving all of your things into a room and making it livable is a chore faced by all dorm residents. The hours spent hitting the books are made to seem longer by the constant opportunities to procrastinate.

Many promises of another "party" (WOW) turn out to be something only vaguely resembling a "good time". Alone, you must again resort to that final resource — yourself. Or perhaps another lost soul will drift by, and together you can guard the T.V. lounge.

"The educational environment is oriented towards the masses. I am not a mass. I am an artist. This school is much too crowded."

"My history lecture is overcrowded — my seat is on the floor."

"The University is a stimulating intellectual environment. There is a tremendous cross section of all types of individuals. For its size, the university carries out academic functions satisfactorily."

"On the whole the classes are too large and impersonal to stimulate participation. Discussion sections and other smaller classes seem to accomplish a minimum of what is intended in a college education."

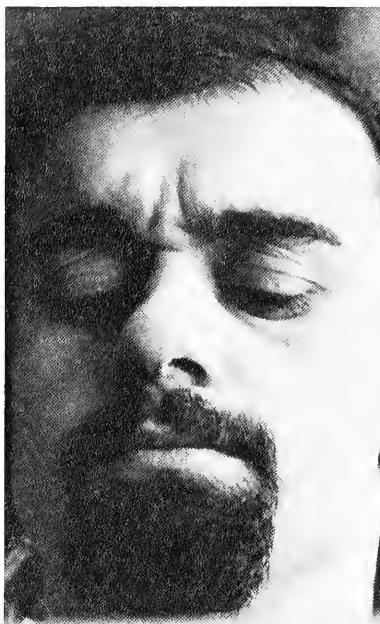

"Introductory courses are absurd and there's not enough individual help for even the motivated student. Professors who earn their 20×10^3 dollars a year and teach six hours of classes a week are generally snobbish and don't care whether the student gains from the course or doesn't."

"For my major the university is exactly what I want. The sizes of my classes are good, there is a lot of freedom of choice as far as courses go and the faculty is good. Outside of my major department I find the university requirements tedious and mostly unnecessary and irrelevant to my educational experience."

What is in a face?

What is in a face? A quiet serenity.

A stern masculinity. What is in a face? People.

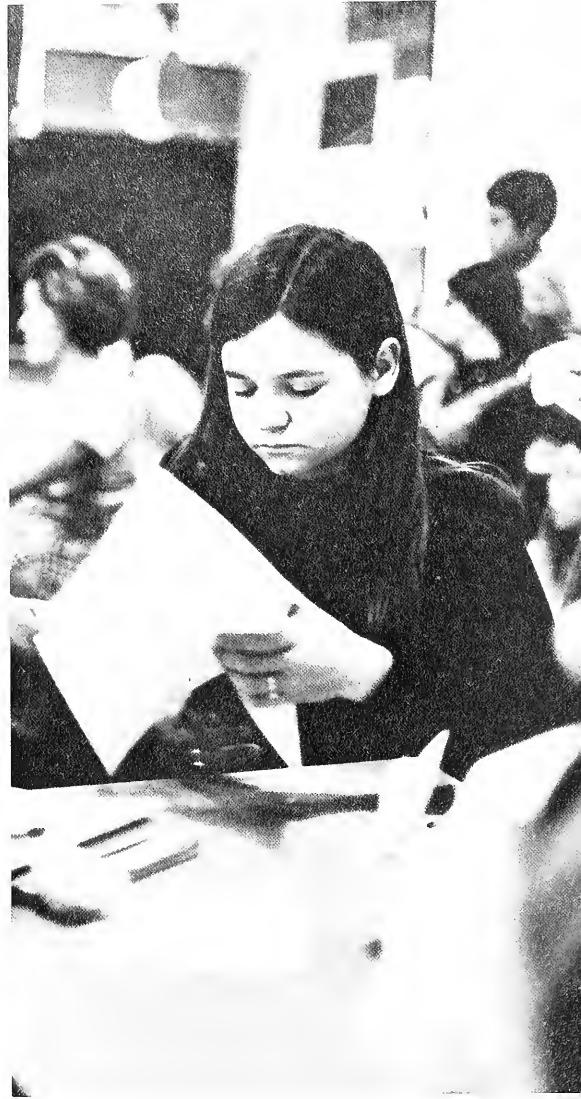

SOMETHING ELSE '70

Something Else '70; one of the school of Education's efforts to keep teachers informed of current innovations and creative methods. Through seminars and workshops, teachers and future teachers were introduced to such things as Sesame Street productions and the oriental art of origami.

Some math teachers may have doubts about the relevancy of origami to algebra but being dedicated, they grit their teeth and saw the project through.

"Classes too large — discussion difficult. Attitude of instructors too impersonal. Requirements suck — I think an all pass-fail system would encourage students to take courses they are interested in but feel it would ruin their cum because of difficulty of course — Other schools have instituted this system and are finding it gratifying."

"Why can't people just talk to people without structured discussions?"

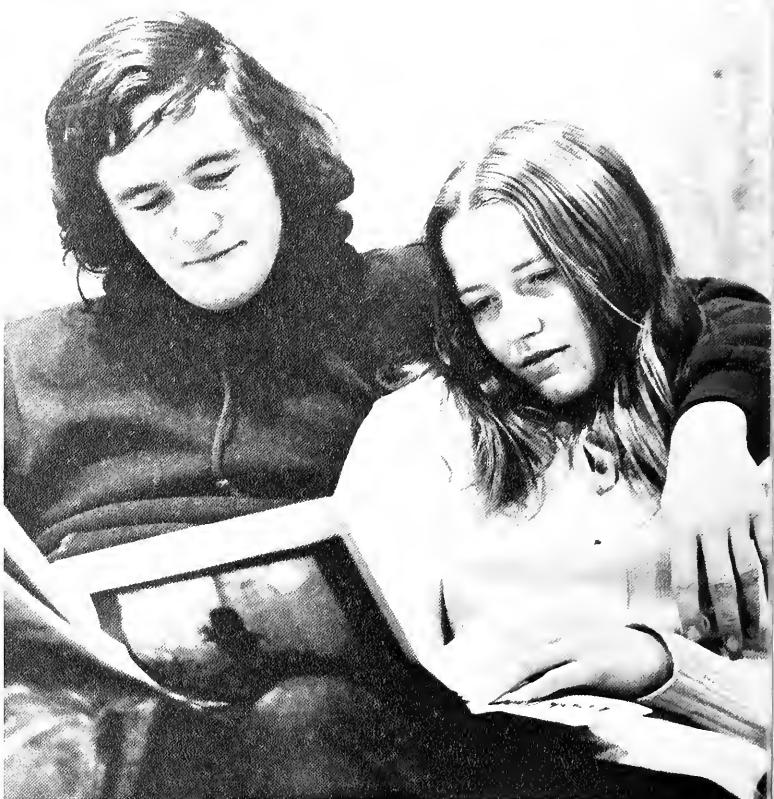

"I can't go to the Hatch, I have a paper due tomorrow at 8:00! Have to study . . ."

We all met the problems of academics in our individual ways. Some of us slept through the onslaught. Others attacked the situation at the source, while some of us even seemed to enjoy the studying stint. The research seemed endless, from the microfilm machine to the card file. Somehow, somehow, the paper got done, the exam got taken, and the problems of academics were solved by most.

*"A most friendly atmosphere –
I have always found understanding when I looked for it."*

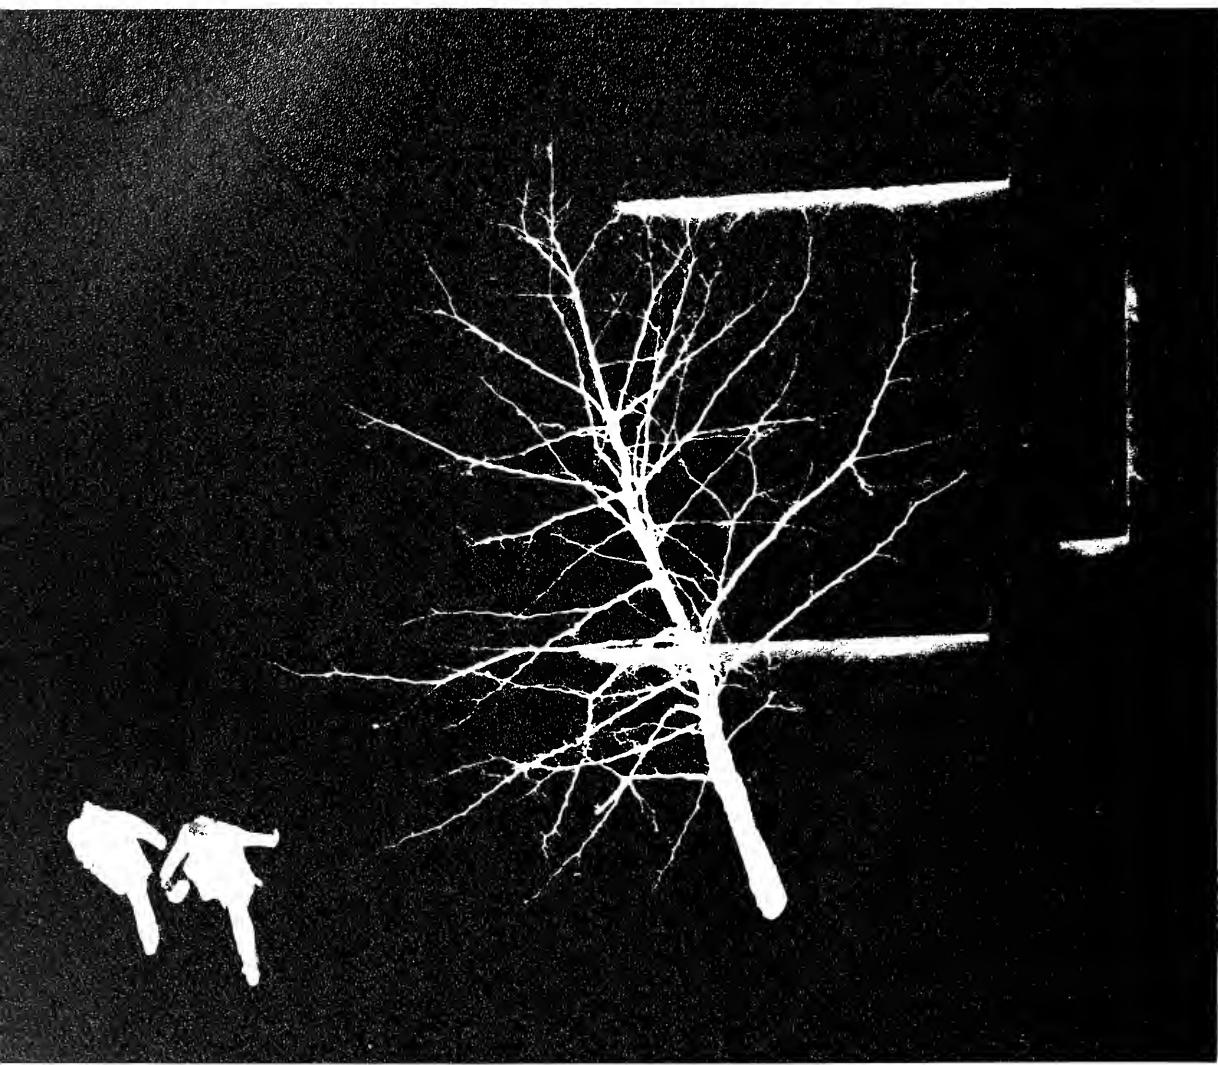

Winter seemed like the dawn of a new ice age . . .

clutching the campus in its icy grip . . .

and covering the construction debris with a white blanket.

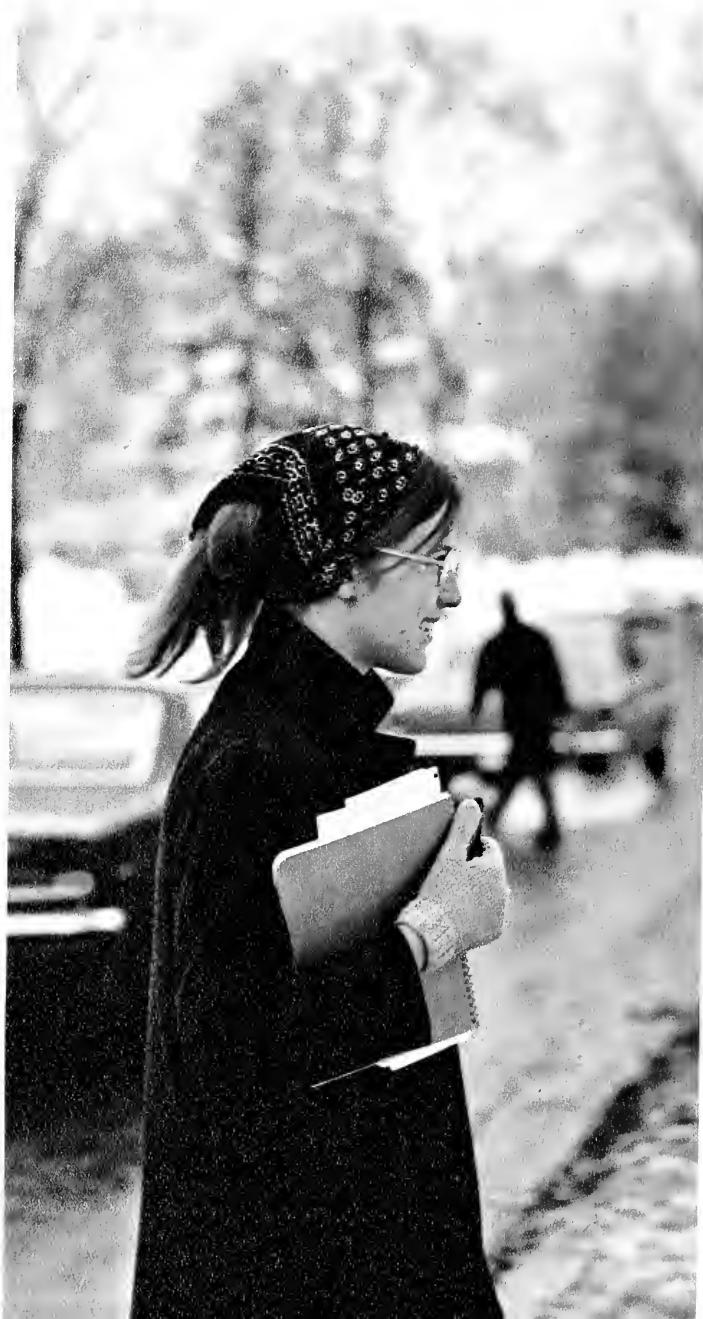

Amidst the blistering cold and snow, we learned to reroute ourselves to avoid the construction and reach our destination in the quickest possible way. The sidewalks were scattered with people grimacing against the wind — as others passed us, secure in the warmth of their cars. Feet, man's most useful accessory, carried us along hurriedly to our next class or back to our "homes." The immediate feeling of physical cold overshadowed our special thoughts. Getting around campus became a time when a smile or holding hands expressed all.

WINTER'S OBSTACLES,

PILE OF SNOW, SKIDDING CARS, LATE BUSSES, . . . IT DIDN'T MAKE LIFE ANY EASIER.

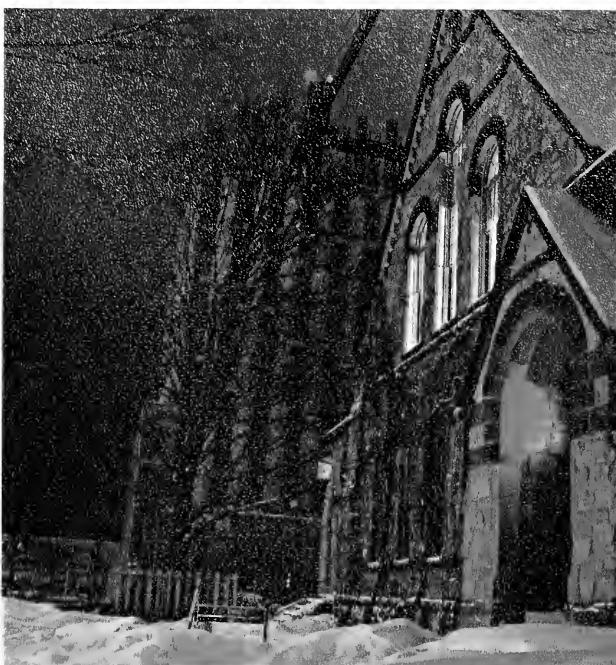

Unlike the musical group of the same name, "traffic" on this campus meant frustration and headaches. Unprecedented University growth created the vehicular volume of a small city, while campus street planning remained in the horse and buggy era. Winter's snow and ice added more misery to the burdens of the motorist. It should be noted that 1971 was the year the administration allowed all students to have cars on campus.

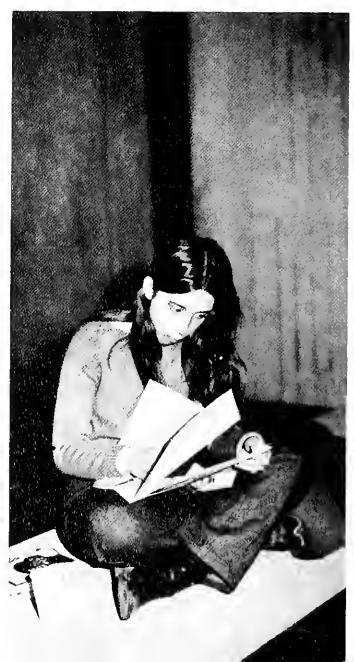

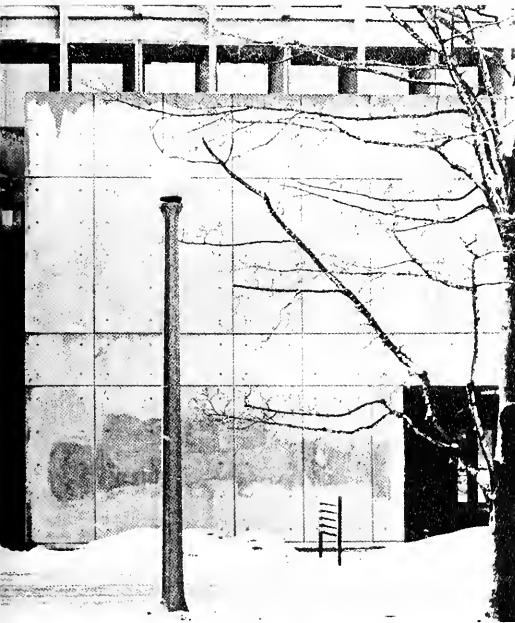

The campus canines are about the only ones who had no trouble weaving their way between the parking restrictions and ever-vigilant campus police.

At first the snow was a welcome change from the barren trees and dry leaves. It was fresh, clean, and fun; providing raw material for snowmen, snowball fights, and weekend skiing. But as fall semester changed to "spring" semester with no apparent end to the cold white stuff, the novelty soon wore off. Outside activity was reduced to a minimum. An empty wine bottle or a required reading list were about the only reasons for a hurried trek through the cold. Most people stayed inside and drank, studied or made love.

SLUSH, ICE, WIND . . .

OUT OF THE COLD, IT WAS HUMAN FOLLY . . .

"On campus social life is very disappointing. Parties, both dorm and fraternity, are sheer madness, who can pick-up who and how many is the name of the game. There doesn't seem to be any place where people can meet people just for the sake of meeting new individuals."

AND PEOPLE, WHO PROVIDED TOGETHERNESS . . .

AND A SMILE'S WARMTH.

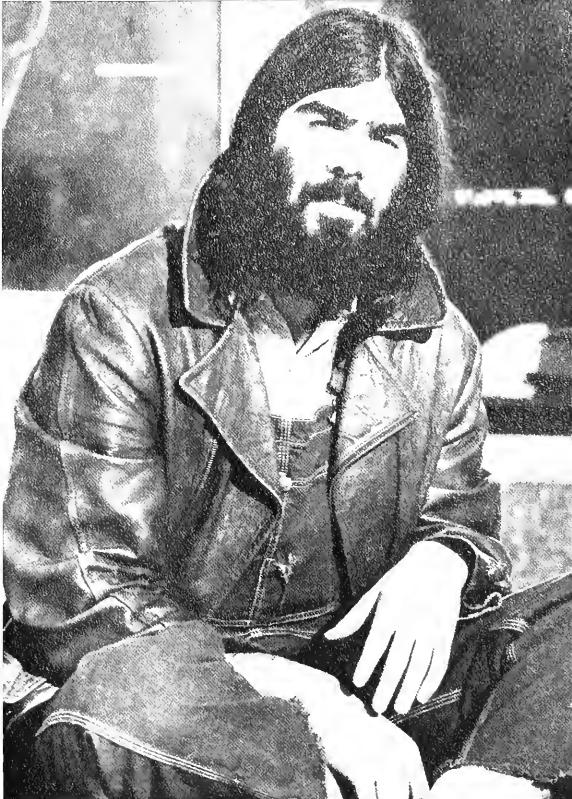

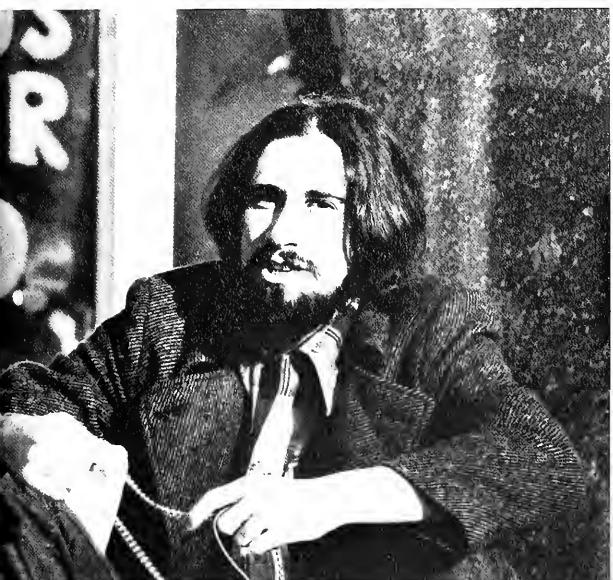

“. . . the social life is what you want to make of it. Perhaps if you feel the fraternity system is the answer, then it may be to your advantage to join. As for myself, I find the social life to be suitable at present because you will generally find a diversified type of social life around.”

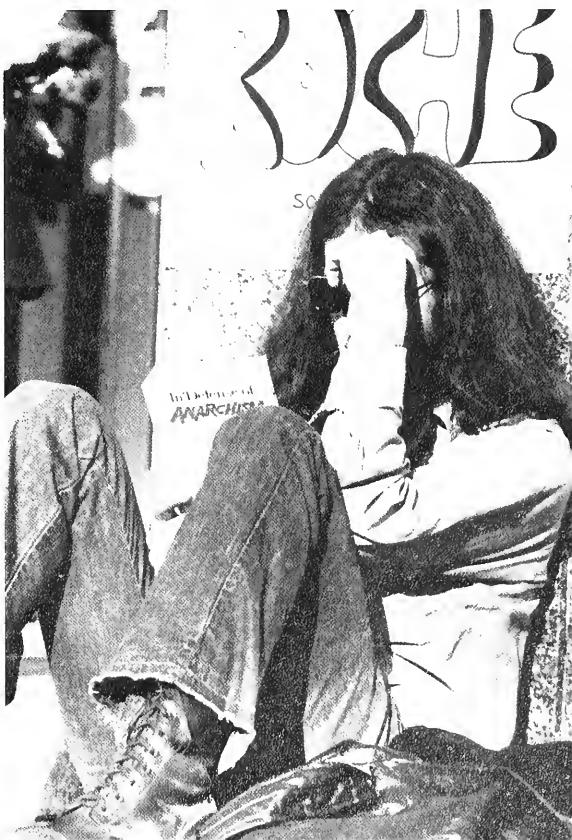

"The university does not fulfill the needs of the student or supply the means to this fulfillment. Drastic changes are needed in regard to requirements, content and kinds of courses "grading" policies, and living accommodations. Students should be allowed to pursue their own interests without threat of grades, failure to obtain diploma, or the hindrance of requirements."

"For the most part my scheduling has been pretty decent. I enjoy large lecture classes because the responsibility of making the classes and doing the work is placed on the student — impersonality has its good points, too."

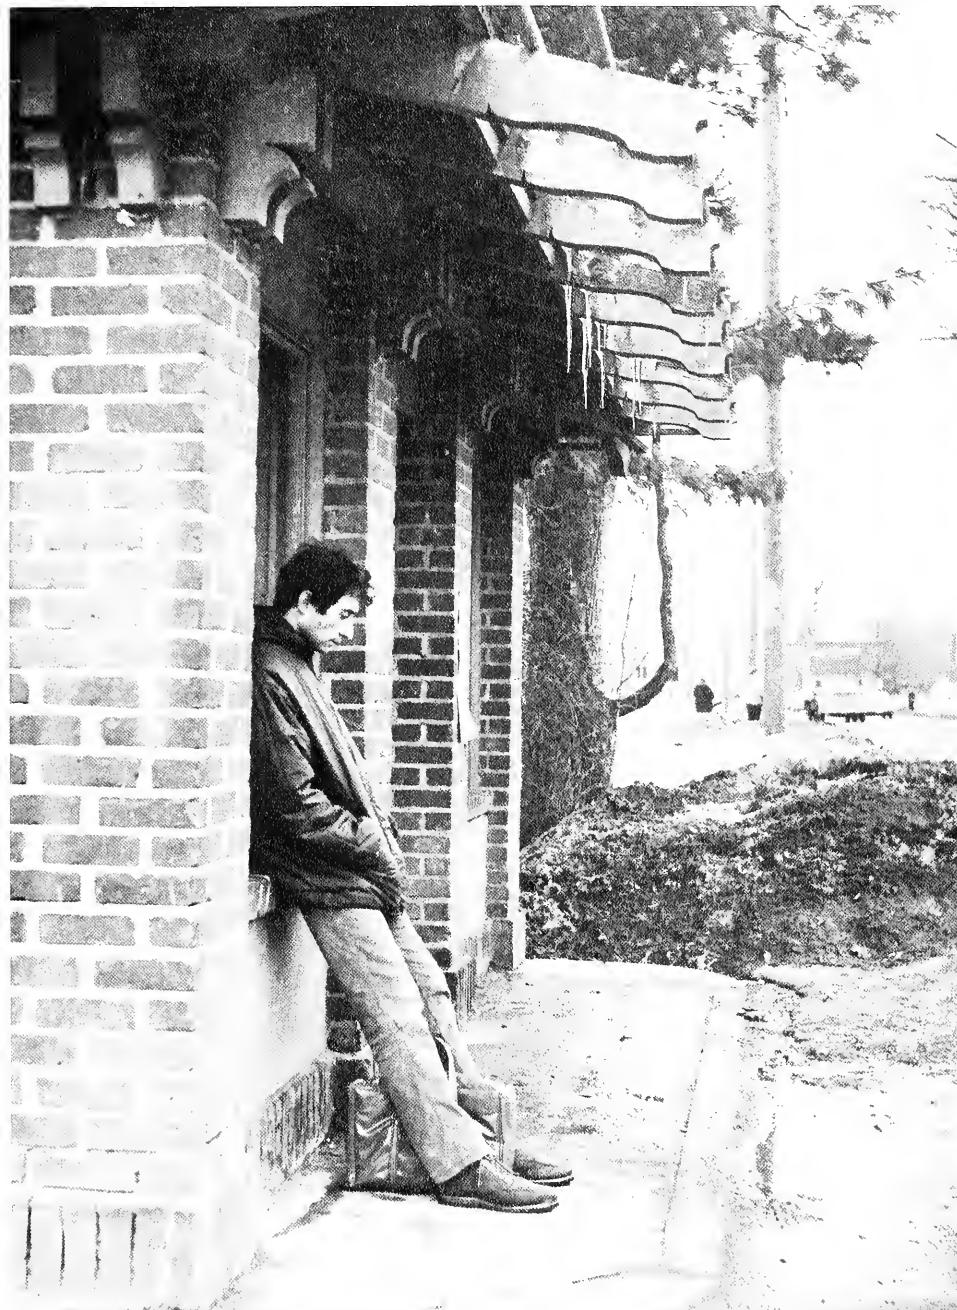

WALKING THROUGH MUD TO CLASS . . .

OUTGUESSING THE COMPUTER CARDS . . .

AT THE END OF SOME DAYS, IT ALL SEEMED LIKE A PILE OF SHIT.

"Physically, there has been an almost instant transformation of the campus from a relatively quiet, bucolic atmosphere to that of a bustling and crowded city, marked with physically massive, if not always architecturally distinguished buildings."

"Far more important, however, than the physical growth are the changes in the educational program, relationships between faculty and staff, and in the life styles of students which have occurred during the past four years."

"The ghastly Indo-China War is a prime example of distrust run rampart which is tearing our nation apart. Almost daily we see the support for it is based upon blind defense of false values and an incredible inability to share information and aspirations openly, honestly, and without distortion."

"Growth in mutual trust and understanding is perhaps the greatest opportunity and the most compelling message of higher education."

Members of the class of 1971 have had the opportunity of taking part in one of the most exciting periods in the history of the University of Massachusetts. During the past four years there probably have been more startling and significant developments than in any comparable period since the University was founded in 1862.

Physically, there has been an almost instant transformation of the campus from a relatively quiet, bucolic atmosphere to that of a bustling and crowded city, marked with physically massive, if not always architecturally distinguished, buildings. The Southwest complex, first occupied partially in 1966, has been finished and occupied completely for three years. Whitmore, the symbol of a stolid administration, was occupied in 1967 — few here now recall the old athletic field which it replaced. Thompson and Herter Halls, markedly different in architecture, have contributed valuable class and office space. The Campus Center has provided not only additional space for student and conference activities but also a memorial to the difficulty of planning physical structures in a mobile, human society. Tobin Hall and the Library tower now under construction are reminders that we are still in the midst of change.

Far more important, however, than the physical growth are the changes in educational program, relationships between faculty and staff and in the life styles of students which have occurred during the past four years. One of the most significant of these was the introduction of the CCEBS program through which the University first recognized its obligation to extend itself with extra effort to meet the needs of minority youth from limited social and economic backgrounds. Although modest in size and not without problems, this program has been one of the most successful of its kind in the entire country. In addition, there has been a rising tide of concern on the part of students for more participation in the governance of University affairs. In one area, this tide has brought increasing insistence for participation in curriculum determination, course selection, and evaluation of both courses and instructors. In another area, living styles have undergone profound change with the spread of open-house policies and the introduction of co-educational living. Finally, and perhaps of greatest significance, was the demonstration by a large number of students in the spring of 1970 of a tremendous current of concern and determination for finding a way of addressing the major social concerns of our time. The student "strike" of 1970 brought into direct focus one of the central issues facing us; namely, whether the university is to be an institution which remains relatively isolated and protected from the storms of critical social protest, or is to become an active participant in the rebirth and development of a more humanistic society, sensitive to needs of people it serves, both on and off campus.

The common denominator which has made possible such astonishing progress in so short a time is, I suggest, the ability of various members of the University community to work within a framework of trust and mutual respect. It hasn't been perfect but, in my judgment, it has been so notably different from many schools as to constitute a real phenomenon. The negotiation which led to open-house residence halls is a good example. There was determination on both sides. Students were determined to introduce a new way of life in which they could be accepted as young adults responsible for their actions; the administration was determined to support patterns of residence hall living which would provide a situation consistent with academic life, protect the interests of minorities of student opinion, and maintain an image of student life which reflected accurately the will of students to lead responsible lives.

It is my conviction that it is this ability to develop relationships of trust and respect which make any semblance of human life possible. Without it we would wallow in a jungle of suspicion, fear, and anger. The ghastly Indo-China War is a prime example of distrust run rampant which is tearing our nation apart. Almost daily we see that support for it is based upon blind defense of false values and an incredible inability to share information and aspirations openly, honestly, and without distortion.

"... it is hardly appropriate to think of the Class of 1971 in terms of epitaphs, epithets perhaps, but certainly not epitaphs."

"1967 freshmen — scared, awed, apprehensive, cocky, excited — and the class begins to be known — Tabacco, Jackson, Landry, Wilson, Joe Pic, and a guy named Marty Shapiro."

"... graduation, it's all over, or is it, not really it's only another beginning, another phase — better equipped now — older, smarter, cooler — real cool — right on '71", right on!"

1967-1971 — It looks like an excerpt from a gravestone. One expects to read an epitaph following it — but it is hardly appropriate to think of the Class of 1971 in terms of epitaphs, epithets perhaps, but certainly not epitaphs. The Class of '71 has a long way to go before it and its members end up as a one-liner on a memorial stone. One wonders what's in store for them, and at the same time hopes for nothing but the best.

1967 freshmen — scared, awed, apprehensive, cocky, excited — and the class begins to be known — Tobacco, Jackson, Landry, Wilson, Joe Pic and a guy named Marty Shapiro. Freshmen curfew and open house once a month — the end of an era as the strains of the victorian leit motif became fainter and fainter and are finally drowned by the tune of a different drummer — student rights, no curfews, self-expression, parietals with one foot on the floor at all times as in shooting pool, sit-ins, take-overs — Elters, Beharry, Pugh, Palomba — buildings, dust, mud and Anderson's, maturation, savvy, conning, hustling, leveling — Pascarelli, Silverman, Tregaser — Dean Field, Mark Noffsinger, Seymour Shapiro, Doc Gage, Jim West — football, basketball, Homecoming, Winter Carnival, S.E.N.D.O.F.F. and Campus Chest — Bill Cosby, Joplin, Poco Seco, Glenn Campbell, Johnny Carson, 3 Dog Night, Playboy Club, Paul Muriat, Unifics and Fabulous Faquhar — R.O.T.C., DuPont, Dow and Demonstrations — John Lederle and Oz Tippo — term papers, quizzes and finals; guts, surprises and W.P. or W.F. — crack the books, crack the brain, cram, think, probe, analyse, bull, angle, think, think, think — Mike's, the Drake, parties — Burke, Patch, O'Conner, Andrews, Flynn, B.P., Accamondo — 24 hour open house, coed living, visiting lecturers — Wayne Morse, Saltonstall, Galbraith, Humphrey — the march on Washington and the Strike — The Campus Center and dust rising for the Library and the Fine Arts Building — Perkins, Ellison, Woods, Ackerstein, Cullman, Belitsky, Bly, Kravitz — N.I.T. two years in a row, D.V.P., Fine Arts Council, the Senate, Area Governments — McNutt, Filmore, Davis, Rockford, Orloff, Bowin, Cann — Free University, N.E.S., S.D.S., S.W.A.P., A.P.O., G.S.S., C.C.E.B.S., and the S.U.G. Board — Burrell, Horseman, McCourt, Bonito, Ballard, Lempart, Moore, Colella, Dorfman — four years gone by — zip, all of a sudden it's here — graduation, — it's all over, or is it, — not really, it's only another beginning, another step, another phase — better equipped now — older, smarter, more tolerant, smoother, cooler — real cool — right on "71", right on!

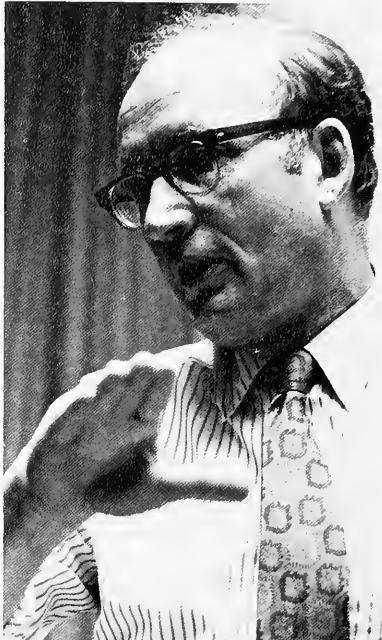

ROBERT WOOD President Univ. Of Mass.

" . . . the day-to-day operations of the Amherst campus, like the Worcester and Boston campuses, are the province of the chancellors and the deans and the faculties and the students who are there."

"The President's job, is not so much to direct immediate activities as it is to ensure that the resources are available for an education of excellence and that they are used for the right programs at the right time."

"I take the future of the University — that is, its public and governmental support, to be relatively secure."

" . . . we have also asked each campus to give top priority to responding to those in industry and government who want to shift their careers to peace-time teaching and peace-time research."

The Class of 1971, University of Massachusetts at Amherst, the Class of 1971, University of Massachusetts at Boston, and the medical students at Worcester who enter their second graduate year, are the first to graduate under the new University-wide system. The Class of 1971 was not immediately affected by this transition, but if the University-wide system works as it should, the education of classes that follow will be even more responsive to the needs of these students and the Commonwealth. In any case, the day-to-day operations of the Amherst campus, like the Worcester and Boston campuses, are the province of the chancellors and the deans and the faculties and the students who are there.

The President's job, is not so much to direct immediate activities as it is to ensure that the resources are available for an education of excellence and that they are used for the right programs at the right time. In particular, we want to make sure that under the pressure of expanding demands for admission and commitments for construction, we do not build a large but obsolete University. A design for the 1950s will not do in the 1970s

The lead-time for restructuring education stretches beyond the span of a single class. The foundations for the right decisions turn on the University calling upon skillful men and women in planning, finance, government, business as well as education. They turn as well on effective communication and a spirit of talk and trust among all parts of the University community.

That is why last December, the Trustees and I established the President's Committee on the Future University. I take the future of the University — that is, its public and governmental support, to be relatively secure. I am very concerned that its shape and spirit fit the 1970's and not be left behind.

That is also why the Trustees and I established the Institute for Governmental Service to help make sure that knowledge generated on campus, possibly useful for public affairs, would be absorbed as quickly as possible. That is why we have also asked each campus to give top priority to responding to those in industry and government who want to shift their careers to peace-time teaching and peace-time research.

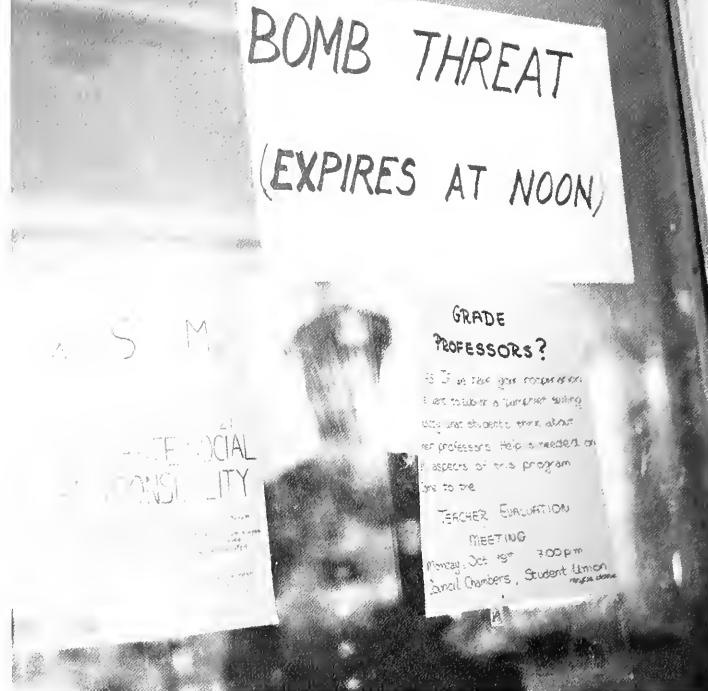

But no long-range plans or general policies make sense unless those charged with the responsibility of University leadership keep in close touch with those who trust their future careers to their direction. So this year, I have taught in Amherst and in Boston in the area that most concerns me professionally — the present crisis of the American City and the possibilities for a brighter urban future. I have also had the privilege of presiding over the faculty meetings of the Medical School at Worcester.

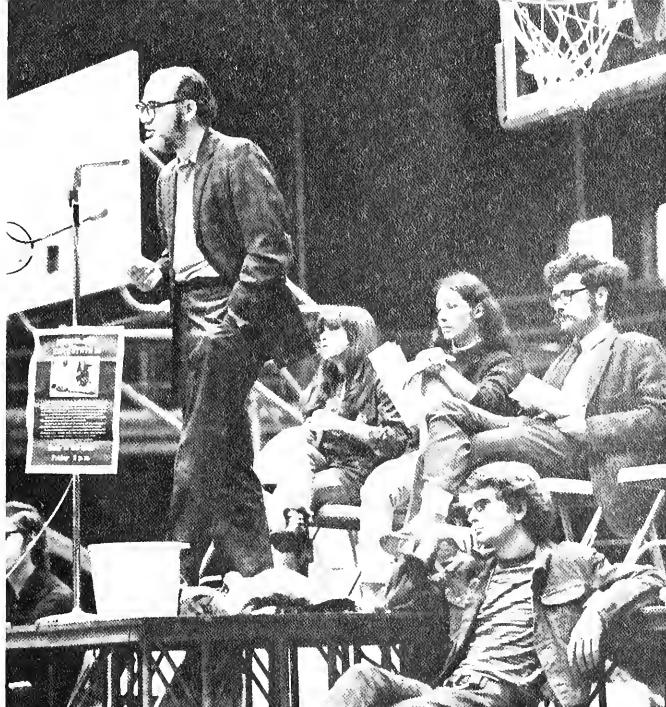

SOCIAL ACTION MOBE NEA

Some members of the "establishment" sought to bring about positive change by working with the students. Participation in rallies, seminars, etc., and the creation of "open-door" policies by professors, administrators, and even some politicians demonstrated to most students that not all their pleas fell on deaf ears.

Others, like the marine recruiter, chose to merely stand their ground while under fire from "unfriendly forces" (students). Whatever their issues on campus may have been, the administration's reaction had a great deal to do with the course of future events.

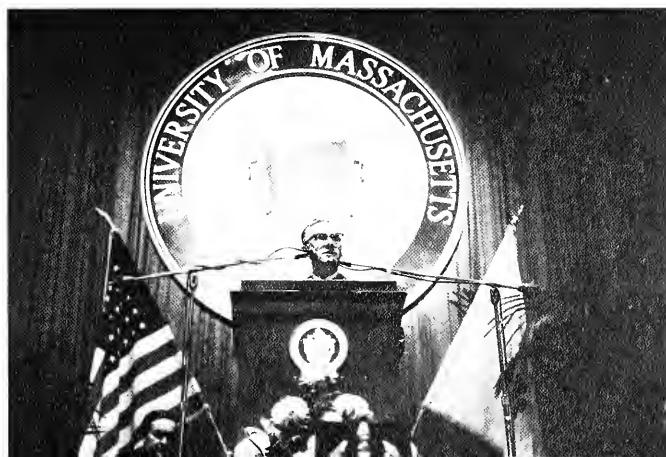

GAY LIB CEQ ROOM TO MOVE WOMEN'S LIB

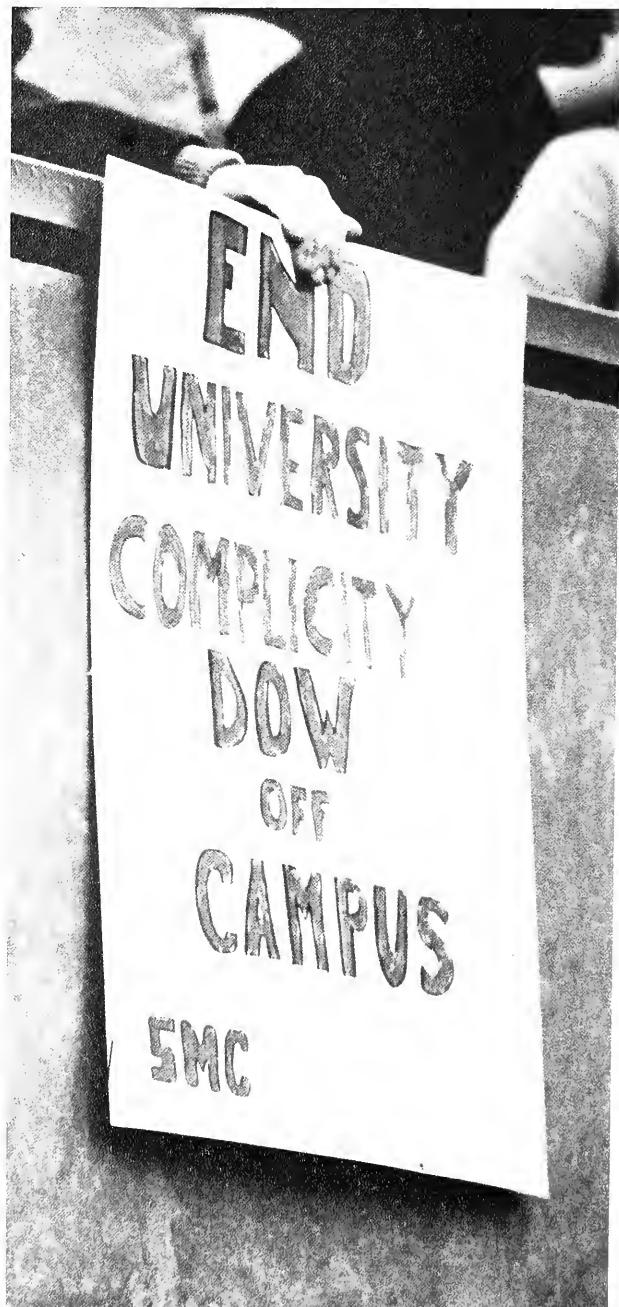

The number of social action groups, especially those with political motivation, reached a new high during 1971, while active student participation fell proportionately. Coalitions, committees, and associations materialized overnight and assumed their positions in the ranks of tables around the S.U. and Campus Center.

Generally, there seemed to be two courses open to those desiring involvement; political activism or social work. You could struggle against oppressive, unresponsive elements in our leadership, or try to help the underprivileged help themselves. There didn't seem to be many alternatives in between the divergent approaches.

On November 19th, Dow Chemical Company made its annual recruiting visit to the UMass campus. The Guerilla Theatre, in an attempt to properly welcome the recruiters, staged a mock Dow kidnapping outside of the administration building. A cold, light rain deterred a great amount of activity on the part of the demonstrators, but the meaning of their presence could not be ignored — it clearly indicated that the interviewers were far from wanted in the University area. The recruiters interviewed several people during the morning, but had "commitments" during the afternoon. Unfortunately, they missed the production set up for their own enjoyment. Maybe they will "catch the show" next year.

Kevin O'Toole, co-chairman of the MOBE, addresses the marchers at Amherst Commons.

Student marchers approach the Amherst Commons.

Braving the cold, students marched from the Union to gain support for an anti-war rally at Amherst Commons. The rally was called by MOBE in order to protest the Laotian invasion in February.

Once the group, which included a Women's contingent, reached the Commons, they listened to speeches protesting the war escalation.

At the end of the rally, it was decided to send a telegram to President Nixon expressing their opposition to his latest escalation of the war, and all those present were encouraged to sign.

DRAFT COUNSELING

"Too many people fail to take proper advantage of the deferment possibilities offered by the SSS. There is a tremendous range of physical disabilities which could gain you an opportunity to not kill people in Vietnam."

"It seems that the new depression is putting some pressure on the SSS. They foresee a problem in being able to place Conscientious Objectors in alternative service jobs."

"The worst effect of the draft, of course, is on those who go in and come back missing limbs or paralyzed, or psychologically destroyed."

The single most important function of Draft Counseling Services is to provide information and counseling on the alternatives to the draft to members of the University community. All its other functions are supportive of this role.

DCS maintains a full-time office staffed by a counselor coordinator and trained volunteers. This is located in Room 418E on the second floor of the Student Union. There are various other drop-in areas on campus which are constantly on call.

Outreach is achieved through a twice-weekly column in The Collegian called Draft Counselor's Corner and written by Gil Salk, the DCS coordinator. An information and literature table is set up in the SU at irregular intervals, and the DCS coordinator has been invited to several dorms to discuss the draft and alternatives.

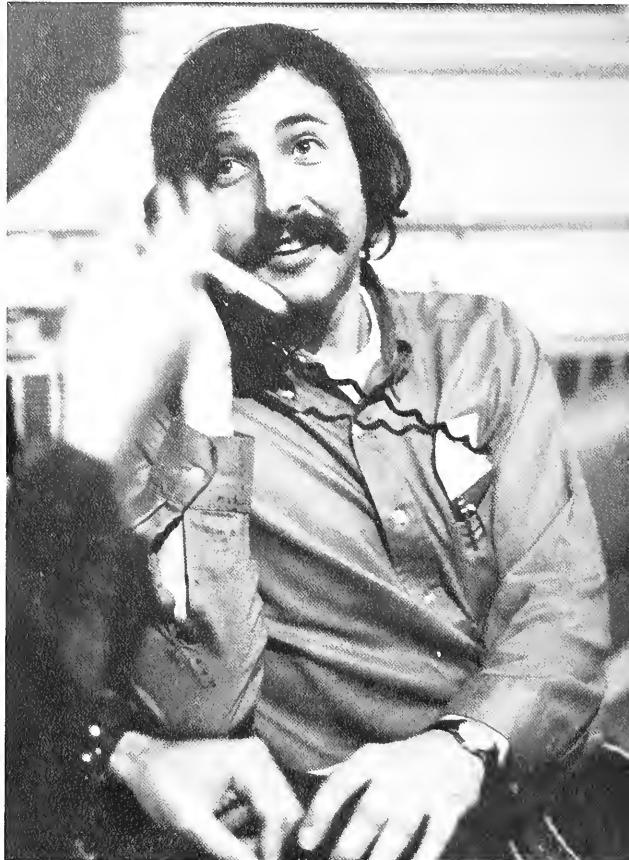

There have been two counselor training programs, and more are planned. To date, a total of about 65 people have been trained. Approximately one-third of these are known to be counseling regularly. At least two more programs are planned for this semester.

We have counseled about 2000 people since July. About 750 have received extensive counseling requiring at least one appointment. The rest have received casual counseling either by stopping by the table, coming into the office with a specific question, or otherwise consulting one of our counselors on campus. The figure does not include the unknown number who read Draft Counselor's Corner or get information second-hand. — Gil Salk

"I can't give my best unless I got Room To Move" (John Mayall)

"I'm gonna sit down on the land and set my soul free . . . And we've got to get ourselves back to the Garden"
(Joni Mitchell)

"The above two quotes show the goal that we are working towards, if we really have a goal. We hope that someday a place like this will not be necessary and people will be together enough to help each other. Then, people will be able to 'feel' and will be able to respond to each other; a desire that is sometimes difficult to achieve here because Room to Move is a place and the idea of it is confined to this one room. What is necessary is for this idea to exist everywhere naturally."

Room to Move deals with other problems such as runaways and personal emotional feelings.

Here George Peters from the LSD Rescue Service speaks on his work and some of his techniques.

These are some of the people involved in film production and the "body awareness" techniques.

In space allocated to them by Free University, members of Women's Liberation, Free University, and some parents set up a cooperative child care program. People gave their time one morning or afternoon a week and supervised children of members of the group. The space was embellished with painted figures of The Cat in the Hat, Winnie-the-Pooh, and the children's own art work. The children had the opportunity to be with more children and different adults.

GAY LIBERATION

Student Homophile League

Organized in the Fall of 1970 the Student Homophile League serves the needs of the homosexual community of the five-college area; undergraduates, faculty, and non-students.

SHL's primary function is to offer a supportive atmosphere in which gay people can meet to discuss mutual problems, receive legal and medical advice, and participate in encounter groups, consciousness raising sessions, as well as social events.

Its secondary function is to educate the community about homosexuality as a life style and refute the myths about gay life. This has been done in the past year by rapping with over a thousand undergraduates in University classes and local organizations. An information center, archives and a library on homosexuality are in the process of being enlarged and are available for use by the entire community.

The Student Homophile League is working to free the person with a homosexual orientation from the oppression of the heterosexual society and to help realize the revolution within our society that will allow every individual to express all the facets of his personality and reach his full potential as a human being.

Gay Liberation Front

Gay Liberation Front was formed as a much more politically oriented group by gay people having an awareness that their oppression as homosexuals is basic to straight society and that complete freedom for gays can only result from radical change. From its beginnings in December the GLF has used the tactics of visibility and confrontation to make it difficult for the straight university and community to continue to ignore the issue of gay oppression. GLF has been concerned with relating gay liberation to the anti-war movement and liberation of other oppressed people and has tried to raise consciousness among gays and straights alike as to how all these issues are interconnected.

GLF members started the Gay Liberation Center in the Student Union to serve as a dispensary for information as well as a meeting place. The Gay Liberation Festival in May climaxed a very active year for people at UMASS. Gay women and men came from all over the northeast for a weekend of fun, communication, and most of all, love. For love is what gay liberation is all about.

VETERANS FOR PEACE

Veterans for Peace was formed during the 70-71 academic year by UMASS students who had served in the armed forces and were opposed to the war in Southeast Asia. The group's two major activities were the march on Westover A.F.B. and the march on Washington D.C.

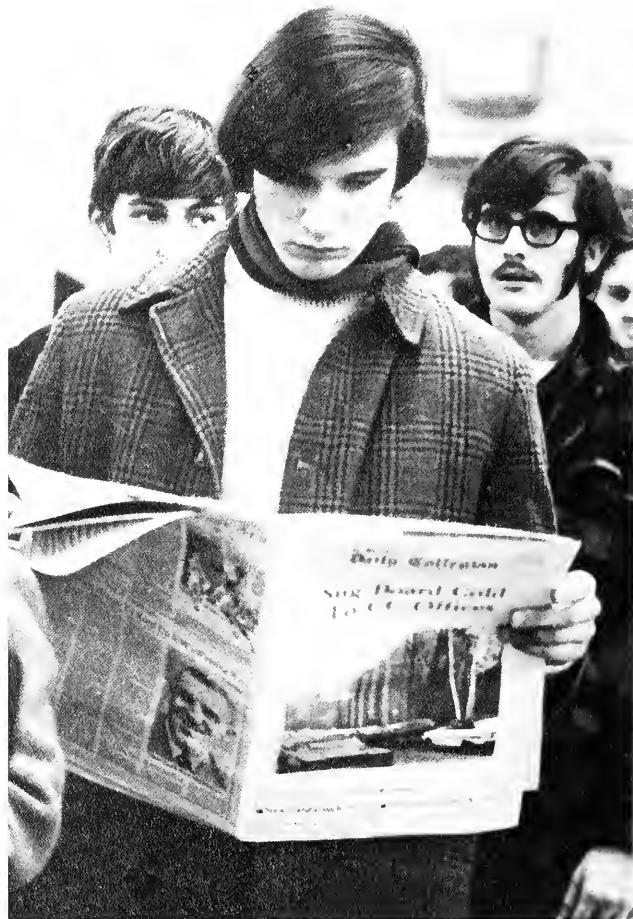

November 2nd has been designated "Black Solidarity Day" by a national committee of black leaders representing a broad spectrum of social, civic, religious, and political organizations active in the black community. Black Solidarity Day is conceived as a national day of unity and awareness among black people in the United States and is not related to the program or ideology of any single organization.

The purpose of Black Solidarity Day is both symbolic and practical. The black community needs a day on which it can demonstrate its essential unity of purpose, stage programs celebrating its history and culture, and undertake serious internal discussions of its priorities and goals. It's a day we can honor our heroes and remember our martyrs. The observance of this day takes place in twenty-one cities in the nation as well as on the campuses of predominantly black colleges and universities.

One. Art, shorn of its hype', its aura, its image, is one, an individual exposing his soul to the realities of others. With some, it becomes an obsession, to paint the perfect picture or build an island Utopia. Another individual uses art to show the world his ecstasy of life and the dance he creates communicates the same joy to his audience. The arts provide a theatre of solace, where the individual retreats to think of the pain and ponder the questions that only the fates will resolve. All of the human condition is art; all of art is One perceiving One.

She said that art is an ego trip. This isn't a moral judgement. It's a recognition of the importance of the individual.

THE COUNTRY WIFE by WILLIAM WYCHERLEY

This evening the Comedy, called, The Country Wife, was acted in Drury Lane, for the benefit of Mrs. Pignell. The Part which gives name to the Play was performed by herself. Through the whole action she made a very pretty figure, and exactly entered into the Nature of the Part. Her husband, in the Drama, is represented to be one of those defauchees who run through the vices of the Town, and believe, when they think fit, they can marry and settle at their ease.

"I'm insulted," said an artist, "I'm insulted if my art can only be appreciated through drugs. It shows either a failing on my part or a failing of the responding individual."

It's not so much a matter of fine art as it is a matter of creation. Building a brick wall, seeing it rise block by block, the power of building something, anything, of saying, "I have done this."

Collars are itchy and tight, and if an individual is thinking about how uncomfortable he is, he won't pay attention to the performer. Tails and gowns are still seen, but the proper evening attire for a concert, a debut, or an opening is now dungarees, a workshirt and boots.

Blues, Bach, abstraction. The individual takes his reflections, churns them up inside, and releases them. The results are unique.

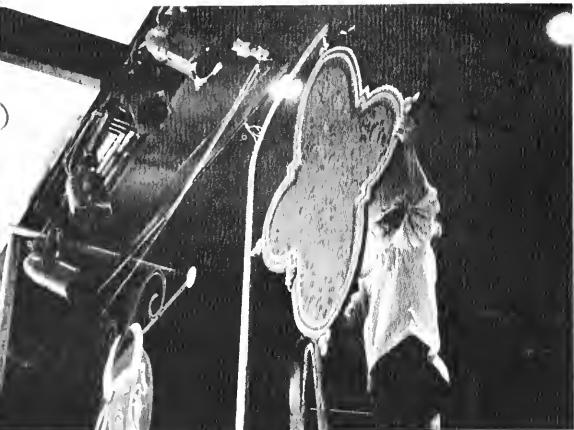

MAJOR BARBARA by G. B. Shaw
Director: Doris Abramson

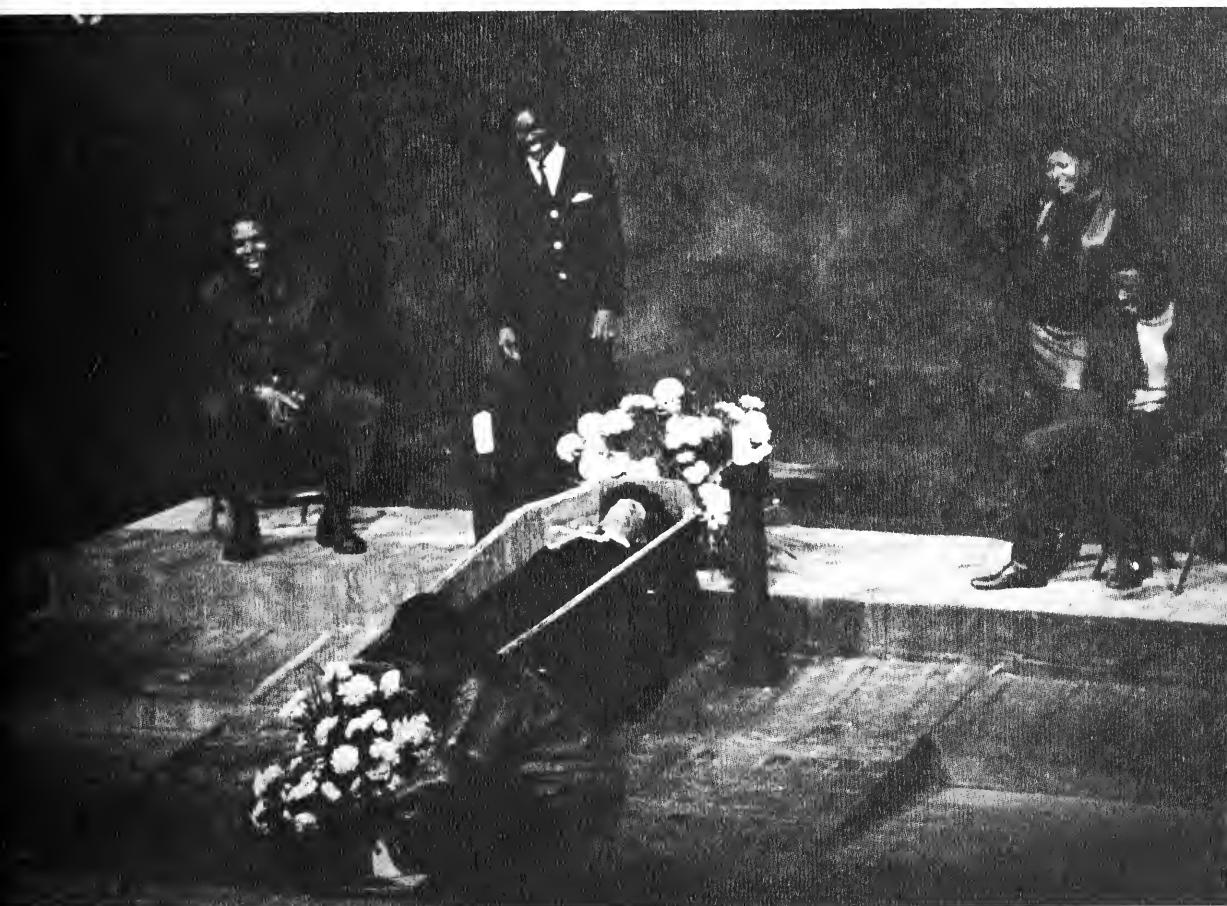

My mother's salvation came through music. She had a mezzosoprano voice of extraordinary purity of tone; and to cultivate it she took lessons from George John Vandaleur Lee, already well established in Dublin, as an orchestral conductor, an organizer of concerts, and a teacher of singing so heterodox and original that he depended for his performances on amateurs trained by himself and was detested by his professional rivals, whom he disparaged as voice wreckers, as indeed they mostly were.

UNIVERSITY DANCE GROUP

directed by MISS MARILYN PATTON (WOPE)

She came back to the dorm every night for the last two weeks at 1 am. Utterly exhausted, she bitched about the director, the actors, and stage hands. "Never again", she proclaimed.

But a month after the performance she was back at rehearsal
Art is addictive.

Motion. Motion with music, light, and people.
Motion with meaning. Dance. Beauty.

As Nature controlled the universe, so did she control the university's celebrative weekends. Seasons and celebrations changed together. The beginning of the academic year brought Frosh-Soph Picnic. As the year mellowed into fall, Soph-Sr. Weekend became a more sombre occasion focusing on the blues of Steve Miller and B. B. King. Homecoming arrived with the first chill of winter. Greeted with optimism, Homecoming's dismal conclusion proved to be the last of the major Cage concerts. The Cage was condemned and even Peace Parade failed to revive it. With winter's barrenness, the campus was silenced by the loss of music but rallied with a festival; Winter Carni — new, unique, and promising. With Spring, a new hope for free concerts appeared.

BUNNY NIGHT

The panel board in the elevator read "12th floor — Top of the Campus" — no sooner had its button been pushed and we were part of the frivolous, Hefnerish world of the notorious Playboy Bunny.

"Bunny Night" at the Campus Center allowed us all to become a part of another man's philosophy of life. The view outside provided us with a night-time glimpse of our campus at play or work, while the atmosphere inside was one of softly dimmed lights, Palatable delights from the chef's cuisine, and liquid concoctions from the convertible bar. Bunny waitresses "peddled their wares" and while the "hands off policy" still held, an enjoyable time was had by all.

B. B. KING

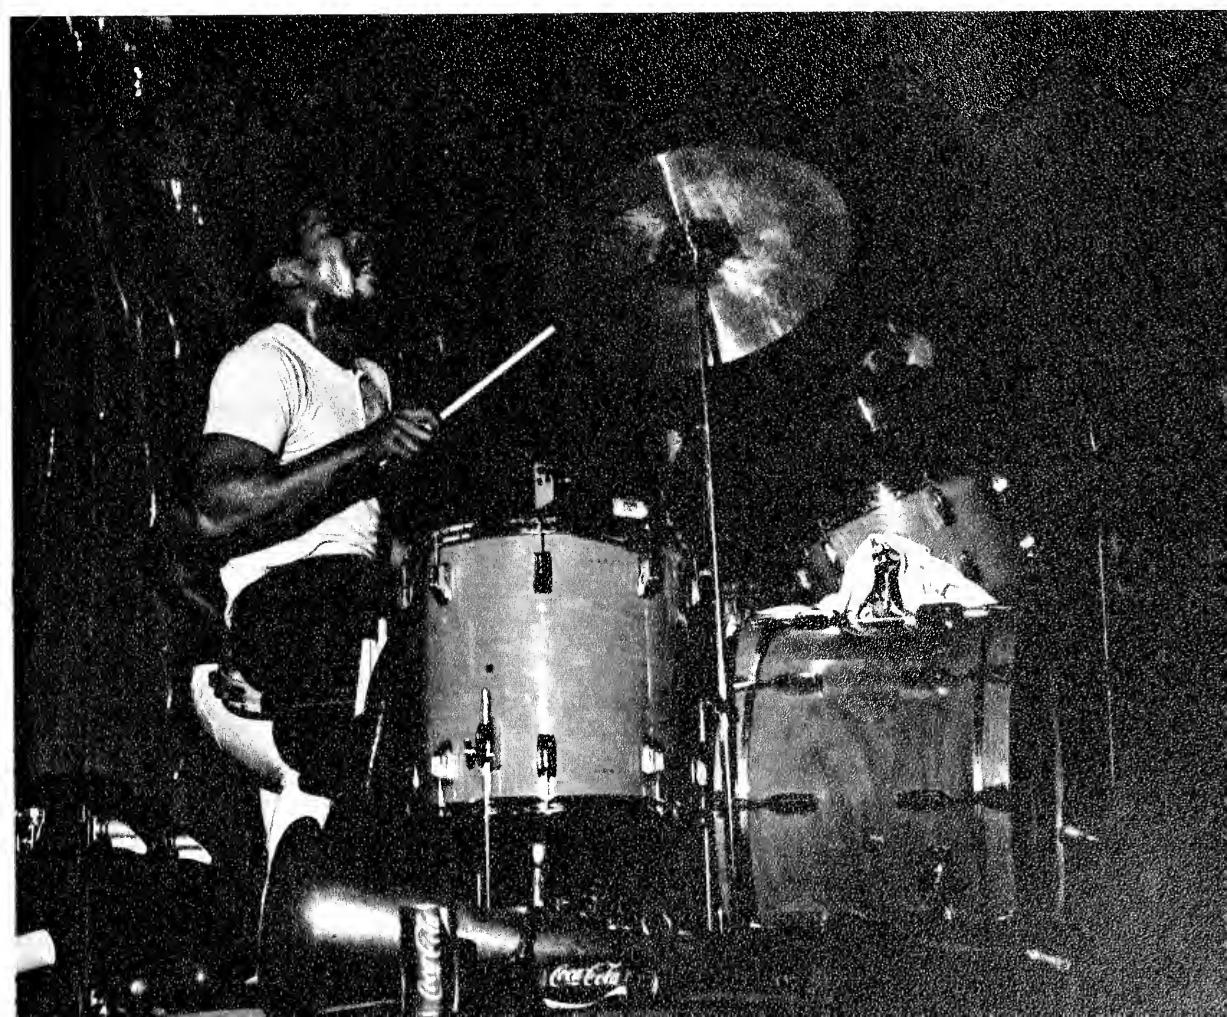

The blues of B. B. King was well received by the Cage audience. The response of the crowd confirmed King's ability to share his feelings with others. This timeless appeal manifests him as one of our greatest living performers.

DREAMS

"Dreams" brought their own special kind of music with them, adding more good sounds to the evening. During a performance which was predominantly blues, "Dreams" provided a welcomed change.

WHAT ARE CONCERTS FOR?

DIFFERENT THINGS . . .

HOPEFULLY ALL ENJOYING THEMSELVES.

STEVE MILLER
BLUES BAND

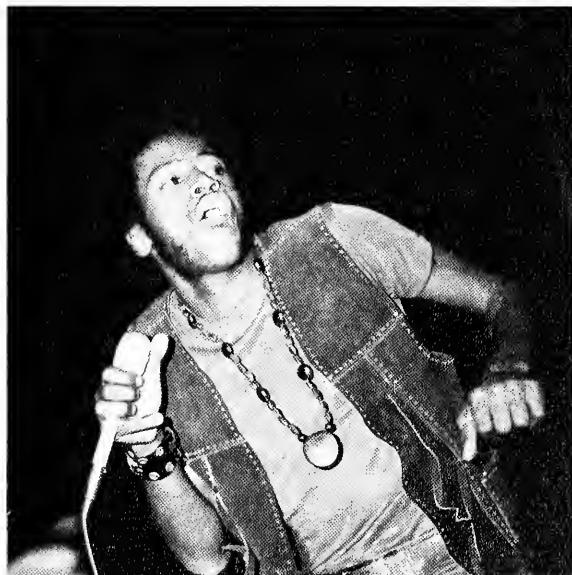

Many people who had never heard of Steve Miller before that Saturday night, left the Cage with a new name to add to their list of favorites. Those who were already fans of Steve Miller, left with a new awareness of his versatility as a performer.

HOMECOMING WEEKEND 1970

Buffy St. Marie, David Frye, "Traffic", "Blues Image", "Rare Earth", and Peace Parade — a fantastic billing of performers was assembled for the Homecoming Weekend. The concert planners attempted to provide a full range of entertainment, only to have their plans end in disaster. Gate crashers threatened to start a stampede and break down doors. To avoid possible injury to innocent people, the concert planners and administration decided to open the Cage doors early and declare a free concert for the second performance Saturday night. Although this incident led to the indefinite suspension of major concerts on this campus, the performers held up well under the stress and Homecoming Weekend ended with a good show by Peace Parade on Sunday.

DAVID FRYE

BUFFY ST. MARIE

People turned on to the message of "Peace Parade" and got together in a friendly atmosphere.

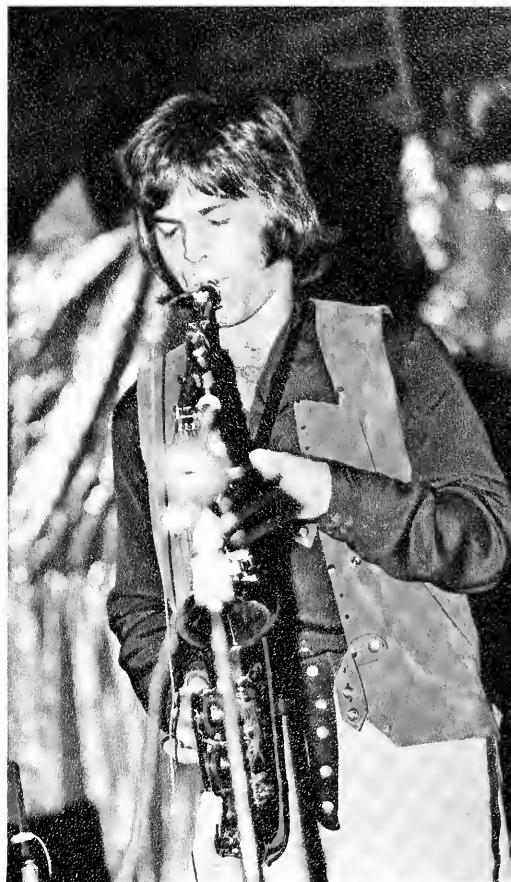

TRAFFIC

Like most big-name groups that come to U-Mass., "Traffic" spent a long time tuning their equipment and not enough time living up to the expectations of the people that came to hear them. By the time they really got rolling with a solid rendition of their hit "John Barleycorn", their performance was nearly over. Those that really like "Traffic" probably were satisfied by the closeness of a live performance.

BLUES IMAGE

RARE EARTH

The show by "Rare Earth" and "Blues Image" was another performance which was satisfying for those who had a preference for the groups, but probably disappointing to those who anticipated something special.

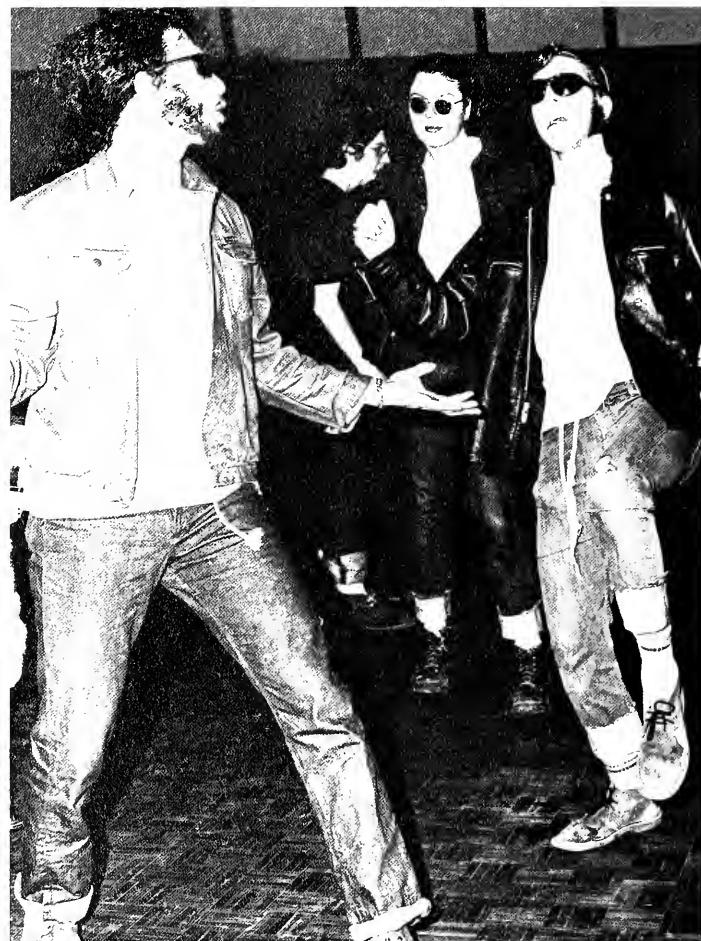

The tradition of Winter Carnival was carried on in an untraditional manner of the far-out freedom of '71. Bottles of booze and a cloud of smoke with the unlikely combination of cotton candy, ten cent records, and a greaser sock hop, merged into a freaky Winter Carni. It was a student happening from the start. No big names to draw a crowd. It was a four day carnival. A peoples' party — and the people dug it.

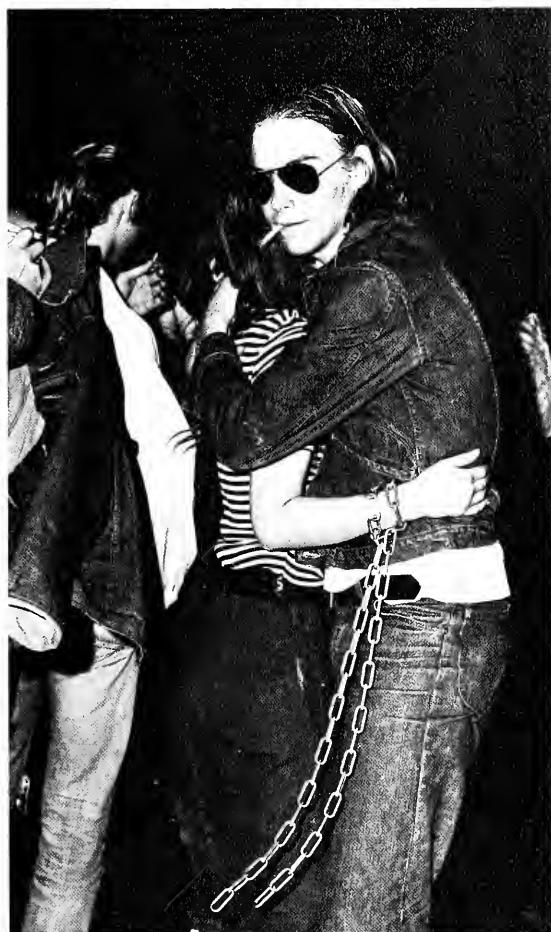

A few sculptures made the scene for Carni '71. A carrot munching rabbit was scraped together by a few female hands while others held the Carni Queen Bowl. Brought to court by a male liberationist, Sandy Clark had to be crowned in a private ceremony late one night after Winter Carnival had officially closed. The NIT-bound Redmen played their traditional festival game and played as high as their spectators felt.

SOCK HOP

The white socks, greasy hair and leather jackets of the 1970's became the cool, hip rags of the Carni sock hoppers. While nothing returns in the same form as its original, Little Latin Larry provided the best of the early rock tunes for the denimclad, chain-carrying fifties freaks.

CHINA NIGHT

China was brought to the Student Union by the University's Chinese students on Winter Carni Weekend. Exhibitions of classical Chinese theatre contrasted sharply with exhibitions of the violent arts of self defense; Judo and Karate. Visions of Chop Suey, egg rolls, and Chow Mein were eliminated from the minds of those in the audience as a bit of the real China came through.

The spontaneity of the people was what made Winter Carni the first real carnival for most of the university community. The most important part of any carnival is the enjoyment of doing and being involved in your own thing. Sitting peacefully with a flower in your lap, grooving on a pair of clackers, pushing posters, reading tea leaves, concocting a chile delight, or working at whatever art you may know, brought everyone together for Carni '71.

Spring Weekend, a Rock Concert Happening — call it what you will, it was a Mini-Woodstock that got almost too large too handle. It was good, bad, wild, freaky, impressive, frightening, and it happened here May 1 and 2, 1971.

Big name groups; Seatrain, Brewer and Shipley, Boz Scaggs, Curtis Mayfield, Al Kooper, shared the stages with local groups like The Jones and Bloodstone. The audience was made up of high school kids, freaks, revolutionaries, townies, beeries, and those who happened to be there by accident or out of curiosity. It was a mixed bag for the mixed democracy of the New Nation.

After the big ceremony was completed, most participants seemed happy with it. All that remained was to find a place to crash.

AND YOU MOVED WITH IT.

UMASS SPORTS . . . WHERE FROM HERE?

The burgeoning UMass campus is raising many implications concerning emphasis and involvement in sport. The size of the university has grown to such an extent that we now have the capability to produce a nationally competent team in any sport. To produce such teams, however, requires a larger recruiting program and better facilities. It seems hardly worthwhile to stand in line at four o'clock for an eight o'clock varsity basketball game. Considering that most of our teams have by now established a dominance in the Yankee Conference, it seems that a good idea is "to pull out now". Obviously, we are now faced with a decision between going big-time or remaining the way we are. We could not go big-time with the facilities that we have, so we are faced with a financial and philosophical dilemma which is very basic to the existence of the university itself. This dilemma will be decided by the emphasis that the Board of Trustees, or the people in charge of such a decision, will place on the importance of sport here. As an alternative to going big-time, we can expand the intramural program to emphasize the participation aspect over the spectator aspect, but as yet there has not been an inclination in any direction.

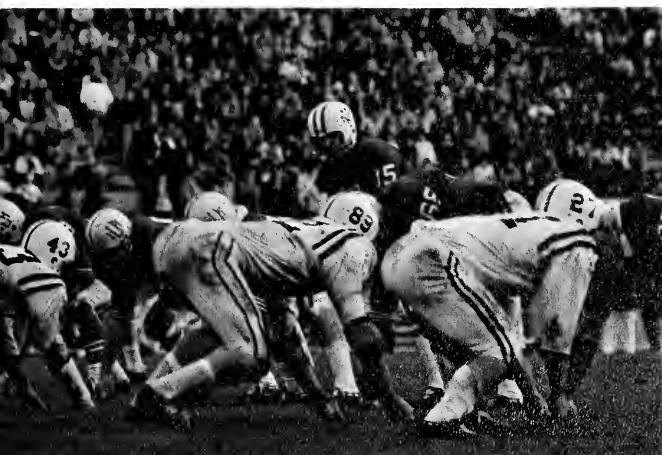

Regardless of the direction we take in sports, it is obvious that we definitely must do something concrete in the near future. Even if we don't go big-time, new facilities are in order. In a time when sports are one of the few diversions in a sometimes drab existence, we cannot afford to jeopardize the little which still excites and inspires us.

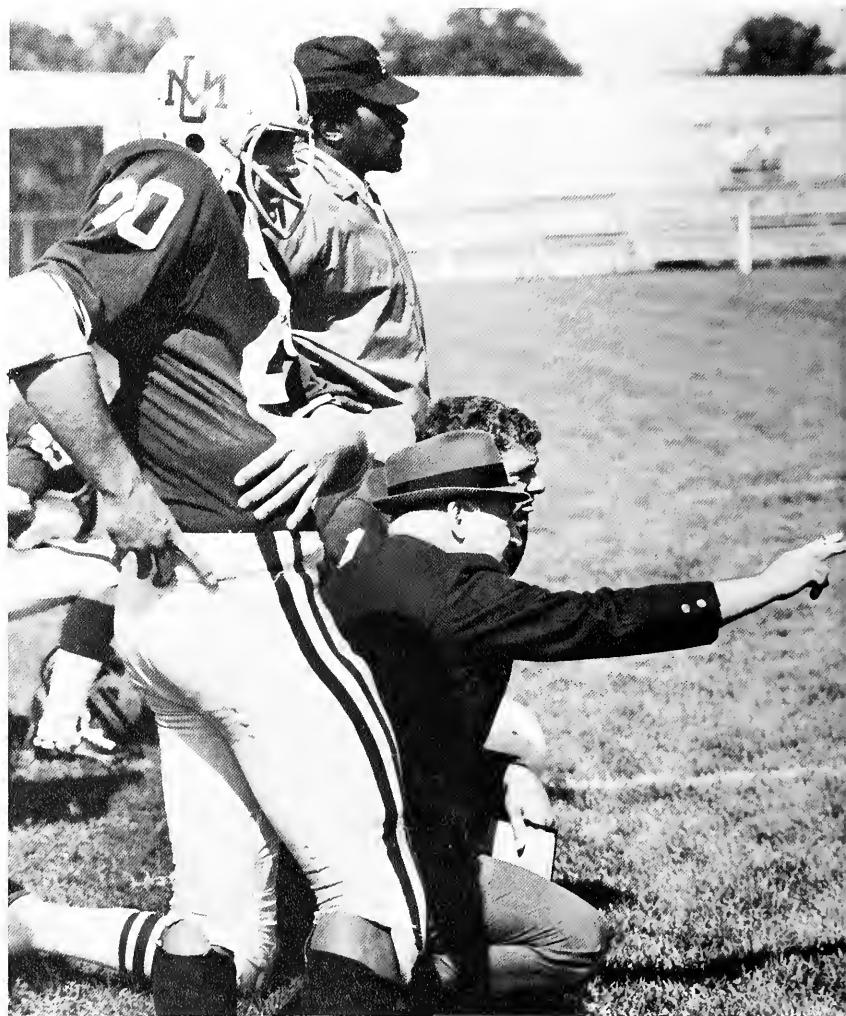

It was the best of times;
It was the worst of times —

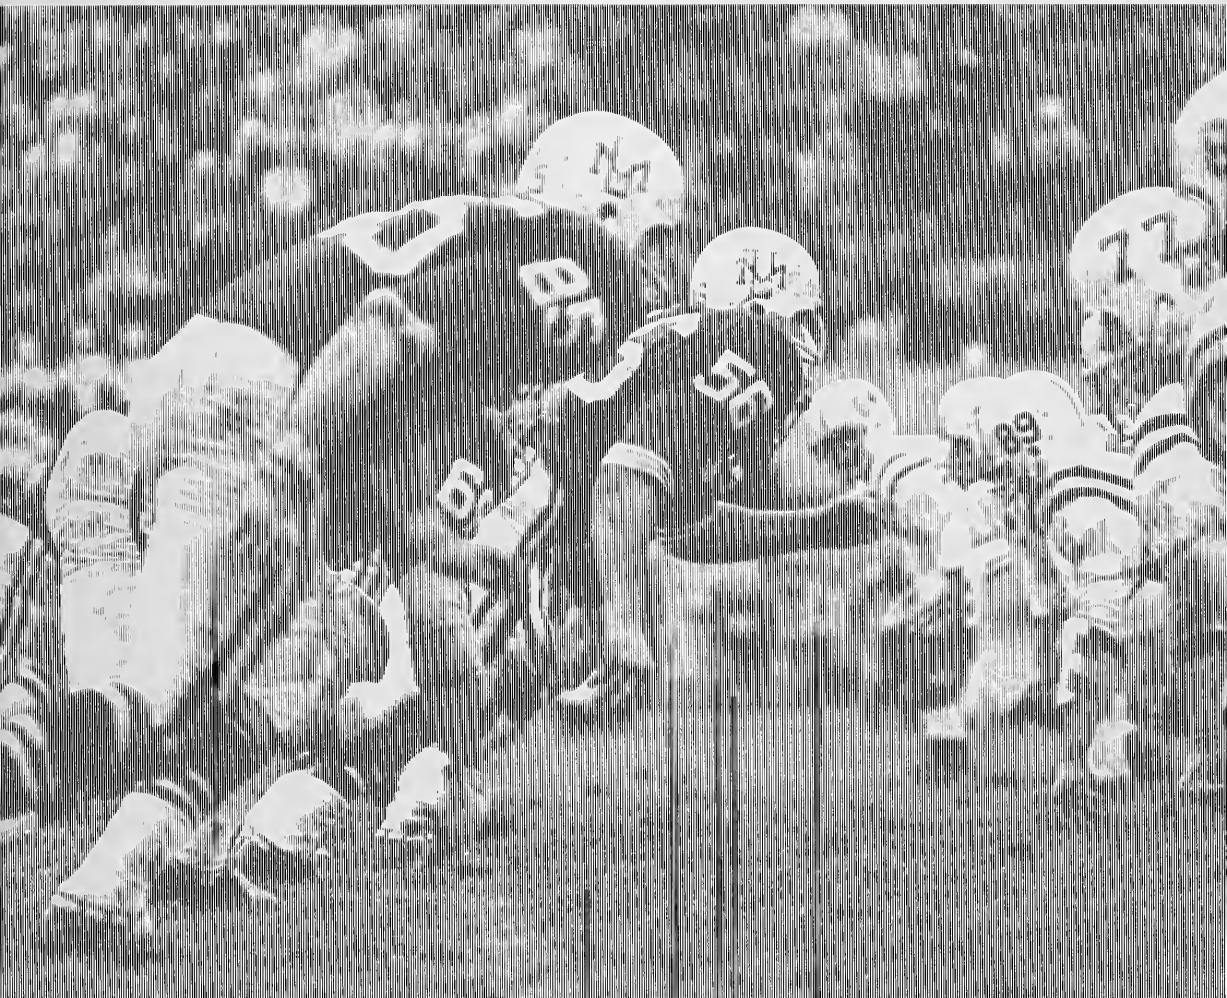

Opening on September 19th, the UMass football season was to prove to be exhilarating at times and excruciating at others. The exhilaration more frequently provided by the defense and much of the excruciating pain being felt by a determined offense which found its duel with the gridiron quite frustrating throughout the season.

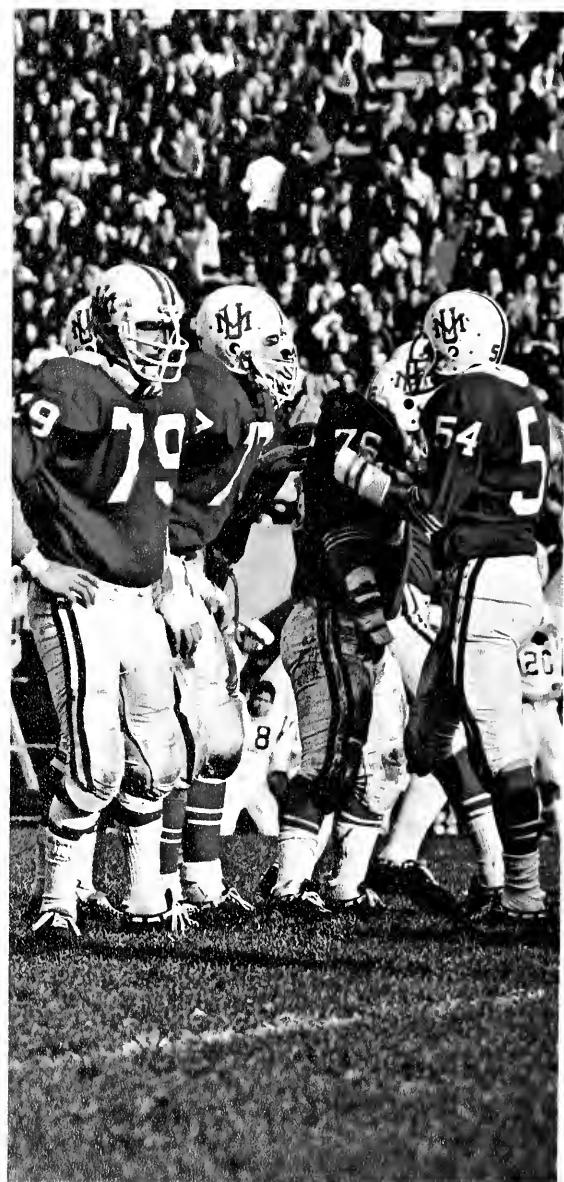

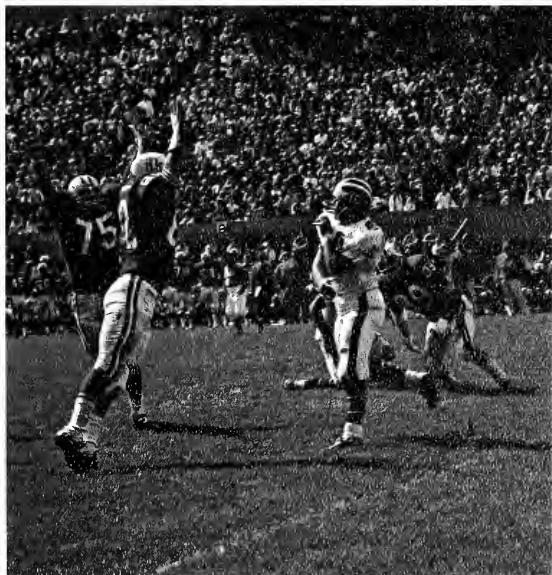

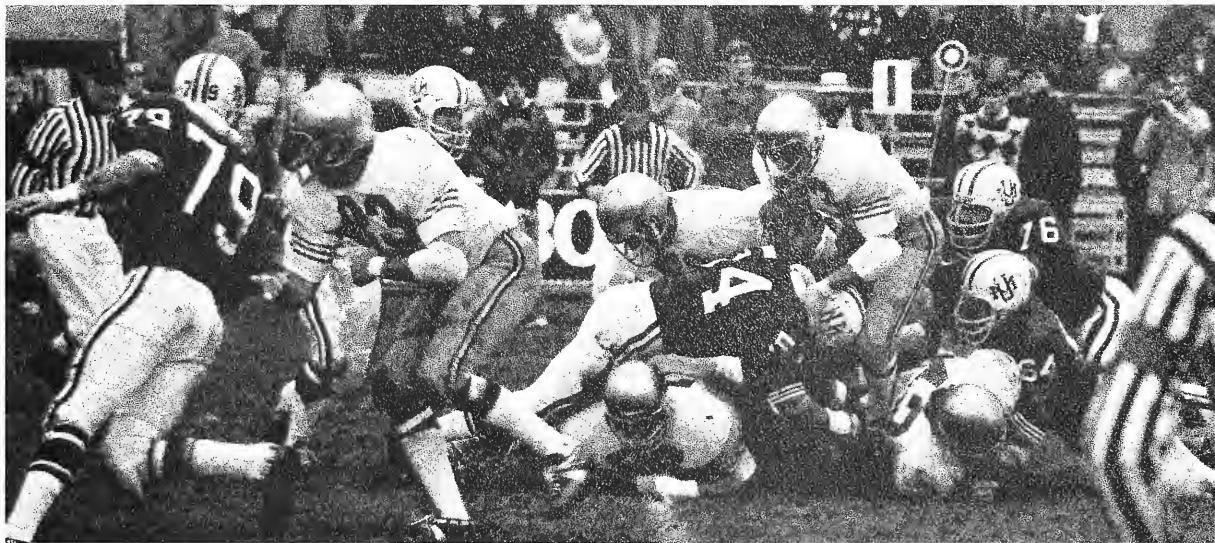

After a somewhat spectacular 1969 season, the 4-5-1 record of 1970 has to be regarded as a let down from a statistical point of view. There were lapses when the 1970 Redmen played like champions of old; such as the game against Dartmouth College when the score was 0-0 through most of three quarters, or the tough battle that was lost to Boston College 21-10. Nonetheless, a team with such inconsistency loses.

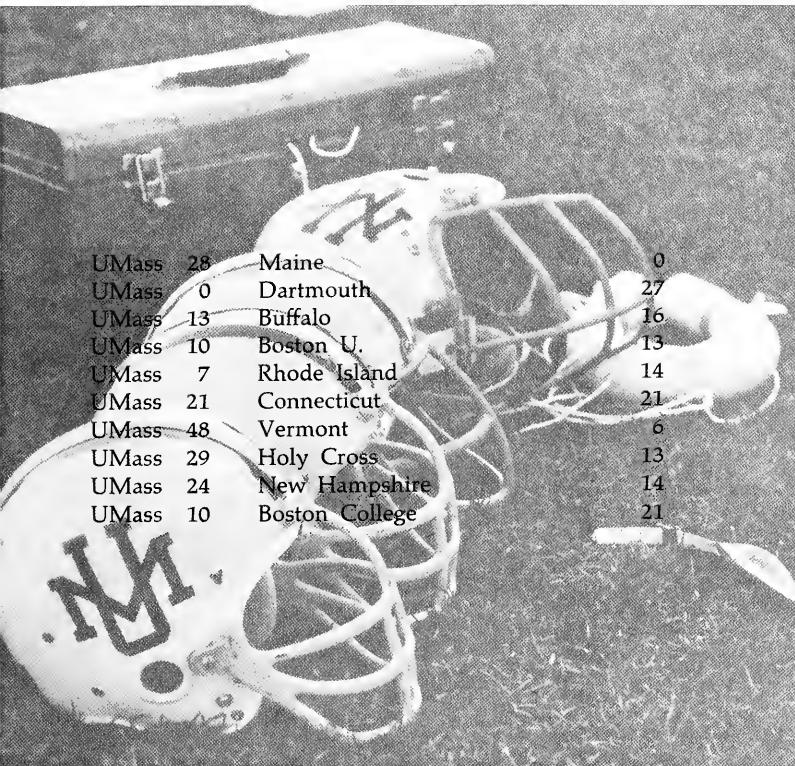

Coach Fusia gives Mike Marchev some advice.

Vic Fusia was head coach of the UMass football team for ten years: from 1960-1970. During this time his teams won 59 games, lost 31, and tied 2. He only coached two losing seasons; in '68 and '70. The '70 season was one of those years when the ball bounced the wrong way, and the big play continually missed by an inch or two. This has to be considered untrue of the great Fusia years.

SOCER

Soccer blossomed in popularity and significance on campus during the 1970-71 academic year. It was an exciting blend of natural talent and basic desire which brought the UMass soccer team from its annual doldrum of mediocrity to a pinnacle of success. An overall record of 7-2-2, which included a 3-0-2 Yankee Conference slate, was good enough to win the Yan-Con and finish fourth in New England.

Lindo Alves leads Tony Nunziante, Joe Cerniawski, and Dave Ouellette down the field.

Coach Peter Broaca's booters were quick to strike and slow to yield. Scoring honors were awarded to Lindo Alves (10 goals — 7 assists), Duane Brown (7 goals — 3 assists), and Marc Cantor (5 assists). Meanwhile, stalwart on defense were Rick Matusczak, Bill Leary, and Dave Ouellette. Needless to say, the fine performances turned in by the members of the soccer team created quite a fan following, the highlight of which was the Springfield College match when an estimated 3,000 fans attended.

CROSS COUNTRY

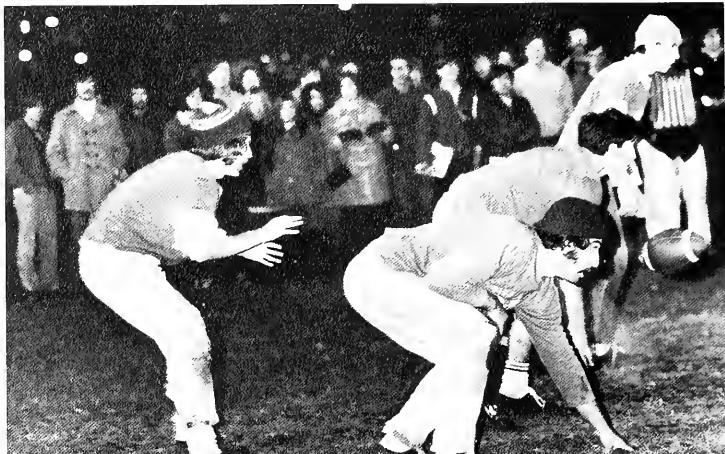

Coach Ken O'Brien's Harriers posted one of the most successful cross country seasons ever at UMass. Pacesetter on the team was outstanding senior Ron Wayne who won nine out of nine races in New England, captured his second Yankee Conference Championship, and won the New England title, on way to helping the Harriers to a 7-2-1 year.

FALL INTRAMURALS

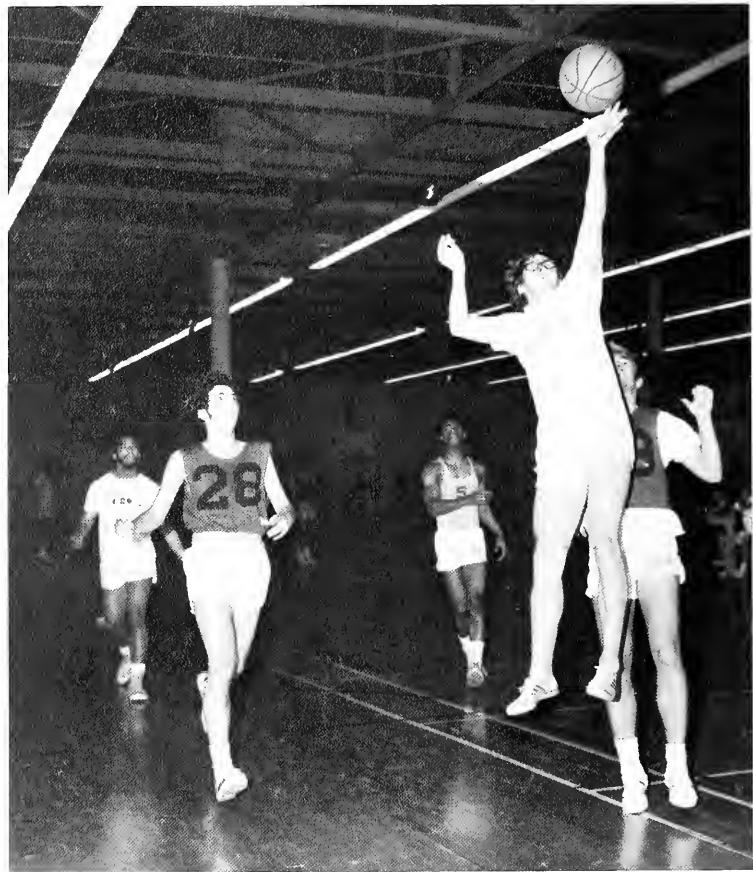

The university's athletic field lights burned long into the fall and early winter night as fall intramurals again proved to be a large and popular program.

The Pied Pipers of Hamlin House (pictured above) took the football championship and received an invitation to a "Touch Football World Series" where they finished fourth.

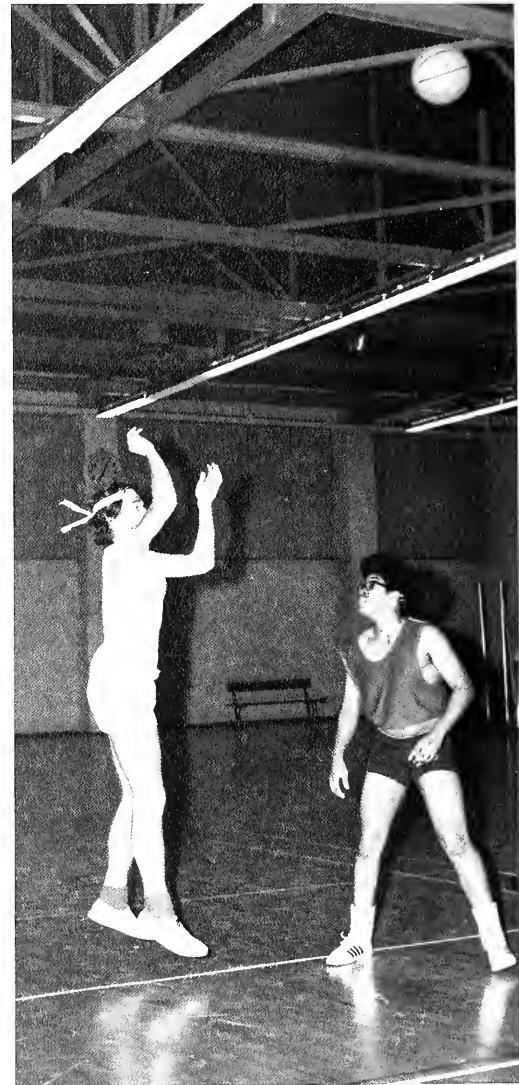

The annual intramural tug-of-war (opposite page) drew the same fierce competition that it does every year.

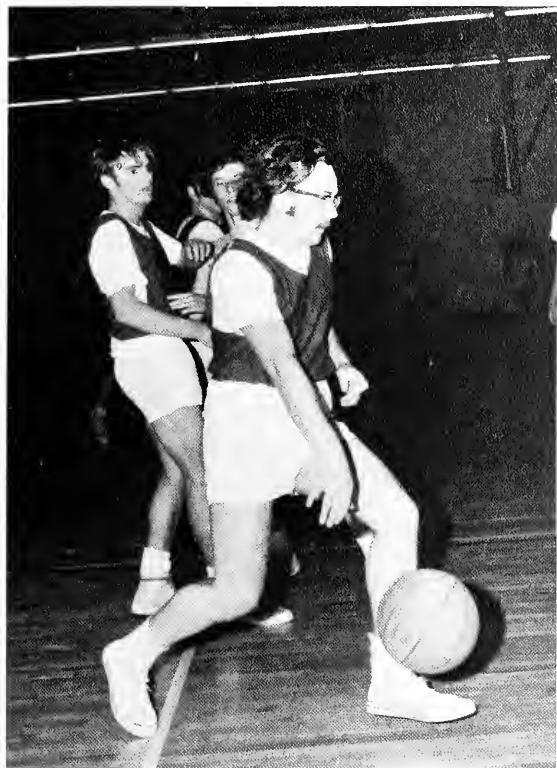

WINTER INTRAMURALS

Under the direction of Ted Schmitt and Peter Graham the intramural program continued to be one of the most comprehensive activities on campus. It also was one of the few activities which drew enthusiastic student participation.

SKI TEAM

Led by outstanding performances by Jerry Curran and Chuck Walker, Coach MacConnell's skiers compiled UMass' first undefeated season in the Osbourne division, and went on to win the New England Championship at Wildcat and Cranmore in New Hampshire. The graduation of co-captains John Gray and Jim Latimer, along with Walker, Curran, and Ted Martin will mean a loss to the UMass Ski Team of five of the most capable senior skiers in New England.

WRESTLING

Captain Shelly Goldberg wins one over Springfield's Ed Metzgar.

As a culmination to coach Homer Barr's three year plan to develop the team, the 1971 wrestlers finished with a 15-3-1 dual meet record, and snatched the New England Championship from the Springfield College Chiefs for the first time in many years. Sheldon Goldberg contributed another outstanding season, giving himself two New England Championships in as many varsity seasons. Ed Carlsson, Phil Davis, Carl Dambman, George Zguris, and Clay Jesyer also had excellent years.

UMASS BASKETBALL 1971 ★★★ UMASS BASKETBALL 1971 ★★★ UMASS BASKETBALL

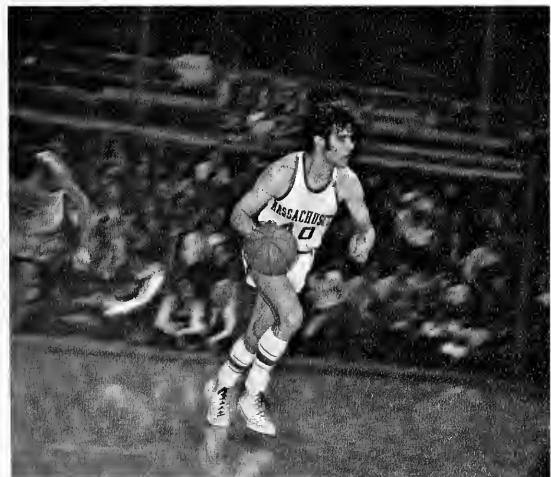

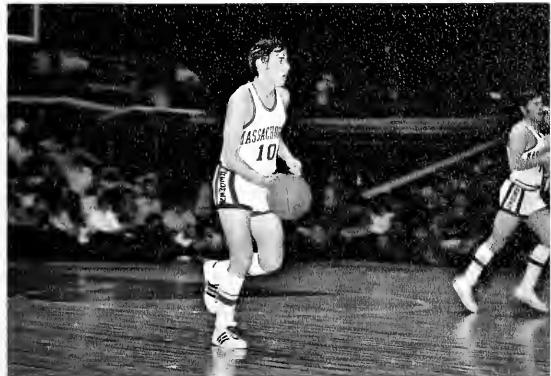

1971 ★★★ UMASS BASKETBALL 1971 ★★★ UMASS BASKETBALL 1971 ★★ UMASS BASKETBALL

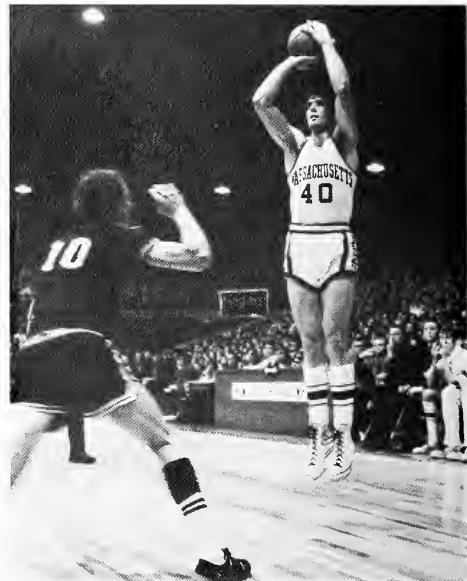

The 1970-71 UMass Basketball season . . . what can anyone say now? It had 20,000 people following 15 players, three coaches, a trainer, a manager, to places like Burlington, Worcester, and New York. It gave a blase campus the opportunity to get excited. It gave the same campus the opportunity to cry a little when it was all over.

It was a great team. The record shows 23 wins and 4 losses, a school record. The record shows an undefeated Yankee Conference mark, the championship of the first Springfield Hall of Fame Tournament, mention in national polls, wins over Boston College, Syracuse, Holy Cross, and George Washington. A second consecutive National Invitational Tournament berth.

And there were the players. People like John Betancourt, who always seemed to save his best game for the most important times. People like Ken Mathias, who was overpowering in the tournament and a tower of strength against B.C. when the team never needed it more. There was Mike Pagliara, who saved the season from early oblivion in Burlington, Vermont, with a clutch overtime, and who was always the steady floor general. There was Chris Coffin, who always was the first player on the floor in any scramble and who was immense against the taller Holy Cross Crusaders.

There was Tom McGlaughlin, who came to the team in mid-season and in his first game, forced into the starting lineup because of team illness, came up with a big 14 points against tough Northeastern. There was Rick Vogely, who was at his sharpshooting best in the Springfield tournament. There were the senior guards Bill Greeley and Bob Dempsey, who always seemed to come with something in the clutch when they were needed. There was all the rest.

And then there was a guy named Erving. He'll be in the American Basketball Association next year, although he had one more year of college eligibility. But he was the focus of three years of basketball excellence. It's not enough to say he broke virtually every school record in two varsity seasons or that he was the school's first basketball All-American. He was the kind of player that got out of a sick bed in the Springfield Tournament to score over thirty points, and the next night break his school rebound record. He was the kind of player who played on a broken toe, that no one knew about, against two of the finest teams anywhere, Providence and Fordham, and nearly pulled both games out.

But when the season was over, all the memories seemed bad. There was the rout in the N.I.T. as everything that could go wrong in a basketball game went wrong for the Redmen. Then there was Julius' signing. Then Coach Jack Leaman's invaluable assistant Peter Broaca left to take a head coaching job.

Bob Dempsey drives around a Northeastern defender.

All that can't cancel what this team did and what Julius did. And if there is one memory to keep from the season, it might be the win over Syracuse, an emotional last home game, when Julius had 36 points, 32 rebounds, blocked shots, and led a superb team performance to its biggest win.

Or just remember a team that gave us an awful lot of excitement when we probably needed it the most.

Floor general Mike Pagliara (top left) goes to work, Jack Leaman (bottom left) gives a pep talk, while Chris Coffin (24), Ken Mathias, and Julius Erving move in for a rebound against Connecticut.

Lee Dedmon of North Carolina and Julius Erving of UMass get the NIT underway with the opening center jump, while later in the game Jack Leaman's pose tells the story, as Julius has fouled out of the game to join his teammates on the bench.

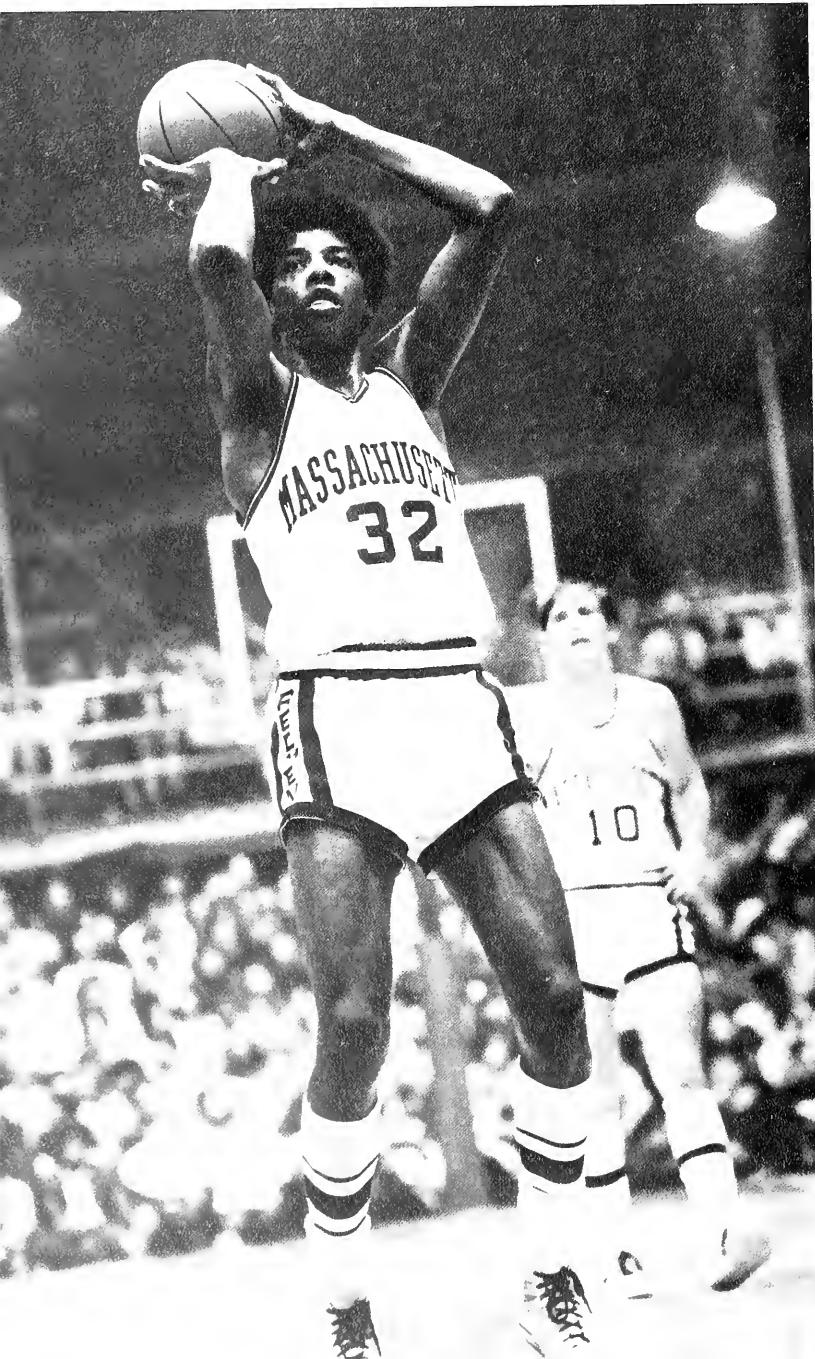

NATIONAL INVITATIONAL

In only two varsity seasons Julius Erving set new UMass career records in scoring with 1370 points and rebounding with 1049. To say that the two most successful UMass basketball seasons ever were the sole result of Mr. Erving's performance would be an understatement. Although Julius was joined on the court by a talented group of individuals, his teammate's talents only served to compliment and accent his own. From his first regular season varsity game to the early exit he made in the NIT loss against North Carolina, the announcement of Julius Erving into the UMass lineup drew an electrifying response from the home-crowd fans as well as a great deal of dissenting cheers from the fans of those he opposed. Somehow it seemed that seeing the big man make the great play was worth standing in line at the Cage at 4:00 for the 8:00 varsity game. The day the Collegian ran the headline "Erving Signs ABA Pact" the UMass basketball program died a little. However, it would be selfish for us to expect Julius to remain at UMass when such a lucrative alternative presented itself.

HOCKEY

Whether it was a face-off or a power play closing in on the goal the UMass hockey team displayed a near professional zest which made this season an outstanding one.

As was the case with so many varsity teams during the 1970-71 season, Hockey rose to prominence as a sport on campus. The UMass hockey team set a new season record in wins with a 12-4-1 record (14-6-1 overall), and a new team seasonal scoring record with 129 goals, 188 assists, and a total 317 points. Foremost among the scorers was sophomore Pat Keenan who had 28 goals and 28 assists for a new individual scoring record. In spite of the fact that coach Canniff's pucksters lost their Division I play-off against Vermont by a mere 2-1 margin, it was a season of optimism. Junior goalie P. J. Flaherty, who turned in many fine performances over the course of the season, will be returning next year, along with Bob Bartholomew, Brian Sullivan, Dennis Grabowski, Mike Waldron, Al Nickerson, Eric Scrafield, Jack Edwards, and Dan Reidy. Sophomores who will be returning are Pat Keenan, Don Reily, Bob Shea, Don Lowe, Bob Shilalie, and Lonnie Avery. The only two players who will be lost to graduation are Paul Riley and Fran Mulcahey.

LACROSSE

In a year when there was surprising excellence in so many other varsity squads, the excellence of the UMass lacrosse team was no surprise. En route to winning the Taylor Division Title the Redmen compiled a 10-2 record, resulting in a final rank of third in New England and thirteenth in the nation. The excellence of the 1970-71 lacrosse team is not considered a surprise, of course, in light of coach Garber's consistently excellent teams of the past. For the past four years his teams have compiled a 37-4 record, and overall the "Guerrillas" are 120-59-2.

Outstanding on defense in the 1971 season were goalie Bruce Crawford, and defensemen Al Ruggiano and Joe Smith. Outstanding on offense were Charlie Hardy with 10 goals and 51 assists, Paul Ritch with 33 goals and 10 assists, John Nagle 28-2, Lou Marinacci 7-12, and Phil Sheridan 15-3. Phil Sheridan was voted the Team's most valuable player, and Lou Marinacci was elected for the annual North-South All Star Game.

SPRING INTRAMURALS

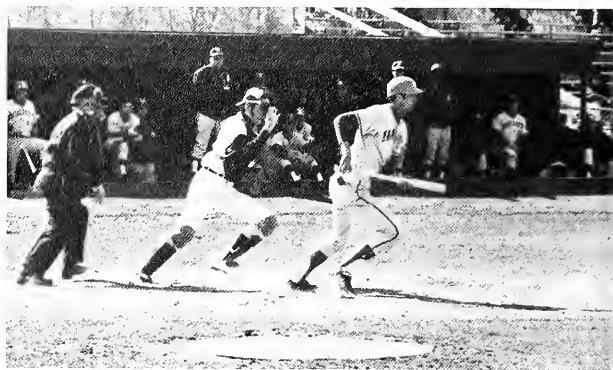

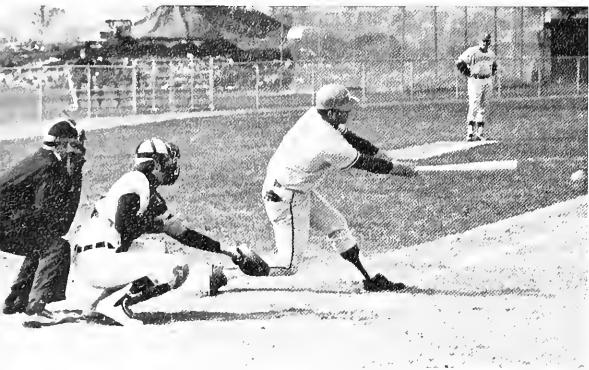

Whether softball, soccer, or horseshoes was your thing, when the athletic field lights were turned on for the spring intramurals many students were turned on as well. With the coming of warmer weather any excuse for a break from study was welcome, and besides, it was fun.

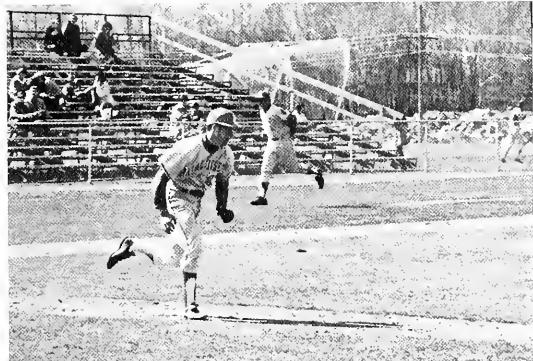

BASEBALL

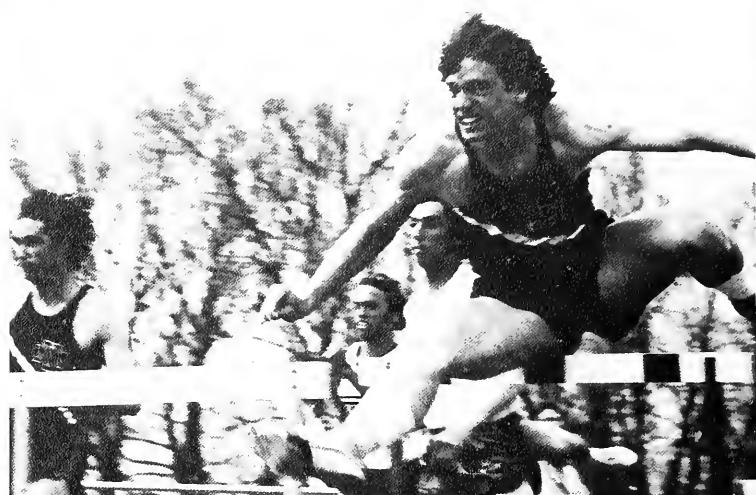

The 1971 UMass baseball team was one of the youngest and finest that this school has produced in recent years. Their 21-10 (12-3 Yan-Con) record says it all. They won the Yankee Conference outright and earned the right to an NCAA divisional play-off series with Harvard, only to lose by scores of 2-1 and 4-2. Outstanding seasons were turned in by Charlie Manley (.382, 5 doubles, 8 triples, and 27 stolen bases), Mark Palau .330, Dan Esposito (.324, 6 home runs, 30 rbi's), Ed McMahon .321, Jack Conroy .313, Tom McDermott .311, and just about everyone else on the roster. If their hitting, fielding, and running weren't enough, a veritable bevy of strong armed young pitchers including sophomore lefty Tom White (5-2, 4 saves, 2.19 ERA), Junior lefty Tom King (5-1, 1.80 ERA) and freshman righty Chip Baye (2-2, 2.10 ERA) were on hand to stifle the opposition.

TRACK

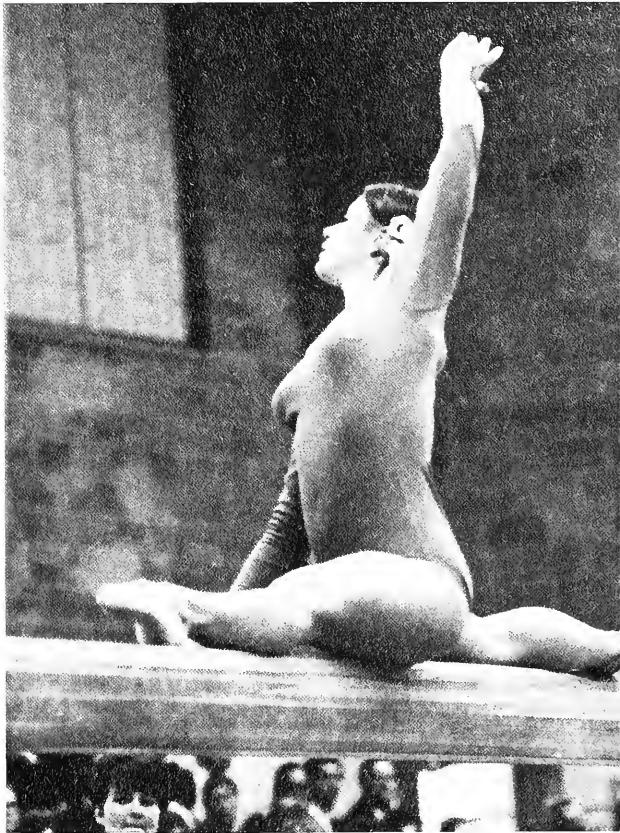

The 1971 spring track season came to a climax with the 24th annual Yankee Conference Championship Track and Field Meet, which was won by a great UMass team effort. The team finished sixth in only one event: the pole vault. Ron Wayne ended a great running career at UMass by finishing third in the two mile run and first in the one mile event. Ron Harris and Tony Pendleton, took the first two positions in the 100 yard dash, and Ed Arcaro won the shot put while finishing second in the discus throw.

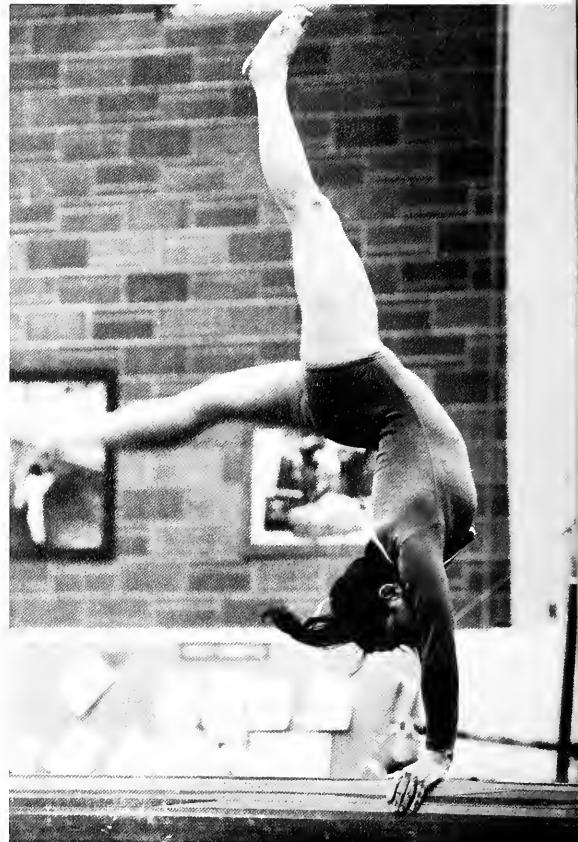

WOMEN'S GYMNASTICS

The women varsity gymnasts posted a 6-2 record for the 1971 season, finishing second in the east behind Springfield College. Stand-out performances in the tri-team meet between Springfield College (1), UMass (2), and Towson State (3) were given by senior captain Linda Seikunas and Anne Burmeister who finished fourth in the country in floor exercise.

Seated on the bench are Vicki Pogel, Jane Marsalais, Asst. coach Valerie Knowles, Linda Sniezek, Coach Kathy Clark, and Janice Morin. Judy Prescott makes the play at second (bottom), while asst. coach Valerie Knowles shouts encouragement.

The highlight of the 1971 girl's softball season, which featured a 5-2 record, was the defeat of Springfield College for the first time ever. It was during this game that Gretchen Witman, pictured on the opposite page, hit the solo homerun of the season.

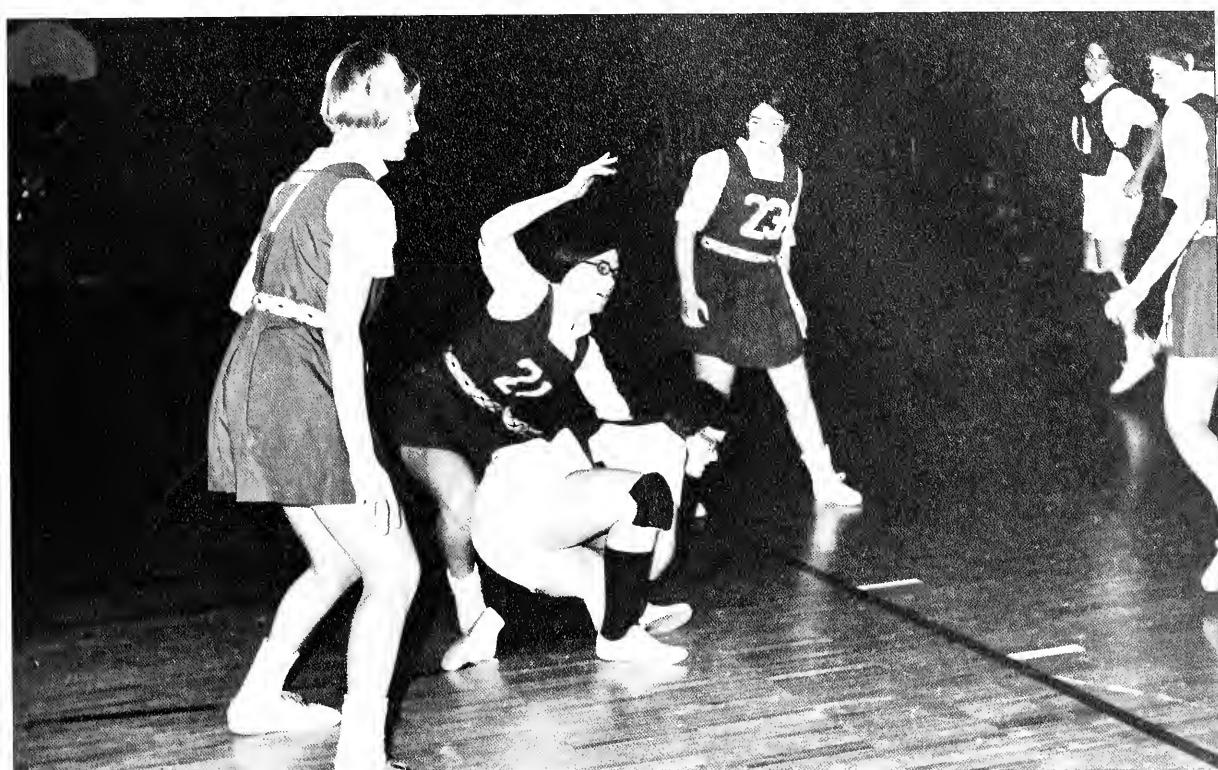

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

Above, Beth Fay (25), Alice Cool (22), and Joanne McGowan (13) are set for a jump. Right, Lois Campanella (7) goes up for a rebound.

Below, Joyce Knappe (7), Cindy Richards (23), and Sue Chapman (20) watch Dolly Lambdin (21) fight for the ball.

In spite of the deceptive 6-10 record, the women's basketball team played well enough to be consolation winners in the Eastern Regional Invitational Basketball Tourney held at UMass this past season.

Organizations at the University suffered during 1970. With the advent of the "new student" — socially involved, but not to the point of inconvenience — there was a drop in participation. It was as if the students were sacrificing their abilities to create and organize to the overworked premise that they should reject anything resembling a bureaucracy. Apathy was rampant.

At the same time, some students expressed their dissatisfaction with the student leaders who were running things. It was difficult for these leaders to remedy the situation when those who complained were too exhausted from bitching to expound their complaints.

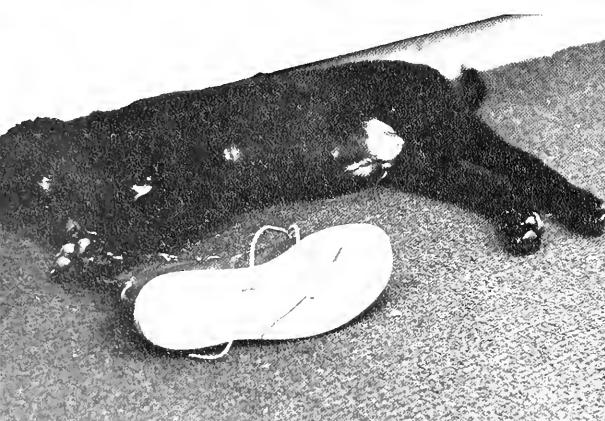

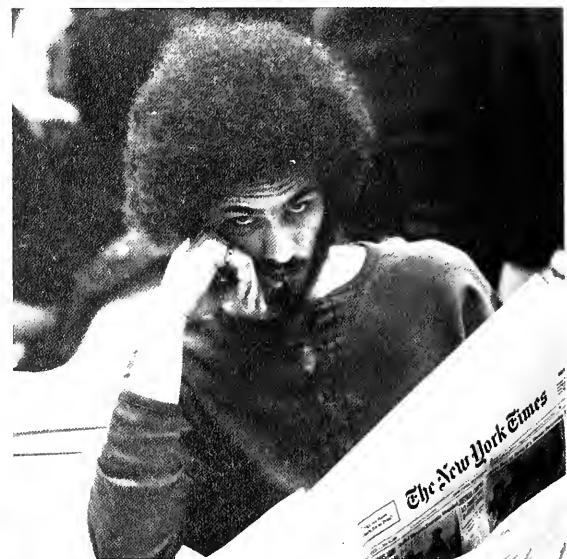

The times they were a changin'.

STUDENT SENATE

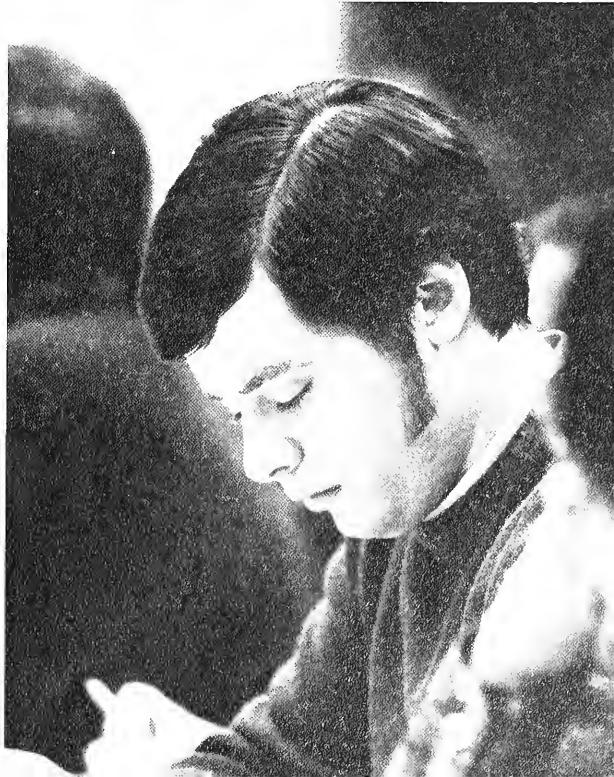

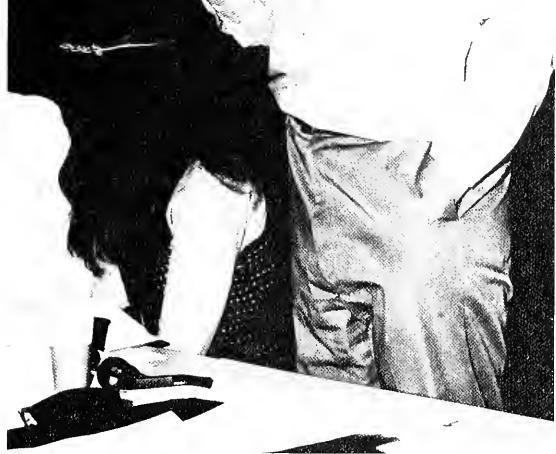

Rich Verrochi, Treasurer

Pat Beharry, V.P.

Under the leadership of President Glenn Elters, Vice President Pat Beharry, and Treasurer Rick Verrochi, the Student Senate acted as the "official" voice of the student body last year, and found itself at times at war with the students it claimed to represent.

The biggest issue for the Senate last year was its decision to pay its own officers — a decision which, it argued, was in line with the policy of paying officers of other major student activities, such as the Collegian. Several disgruntled senators, however, forced a student-wide referendum on the pay issue, and the student body reversed the Senate's decision, thereby stripping the Senate officers of their pay.

In a long overdue gesture, the Student Senate hired an exclusive "Attorney for Students" for 1970-71. Richard M. Howland, a graduate of the Columbia School of Law, was given the job, and found it to be of quite a variegated nature.

Students consulted with Mr. Howland on virtually every problem — real, imagined, or anticipated. From criminal matters to motor vehicle accidents, from divorces to landlord-tenant problems, from consumer-complaint cases to wills — A wide spectrum of students and their problems paraded through Mr. Howland's office constantly.

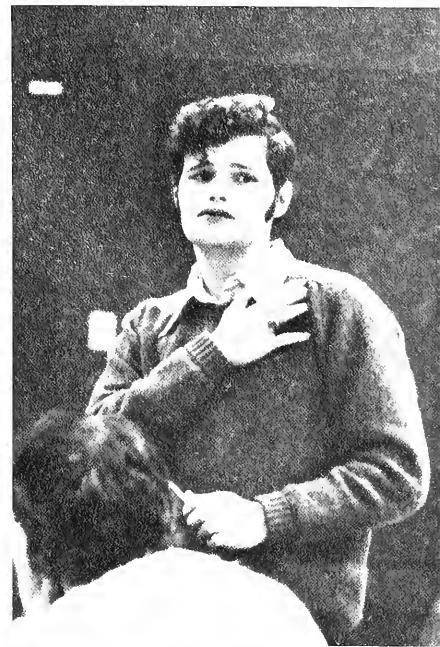

The aspect of this service which sparked many students into consultation was the fact that it was done without charge. Because of the large number of students involved, however, Mr. Howland could not represent any individuals in court. Instead, he referred them to competent local lawyers.

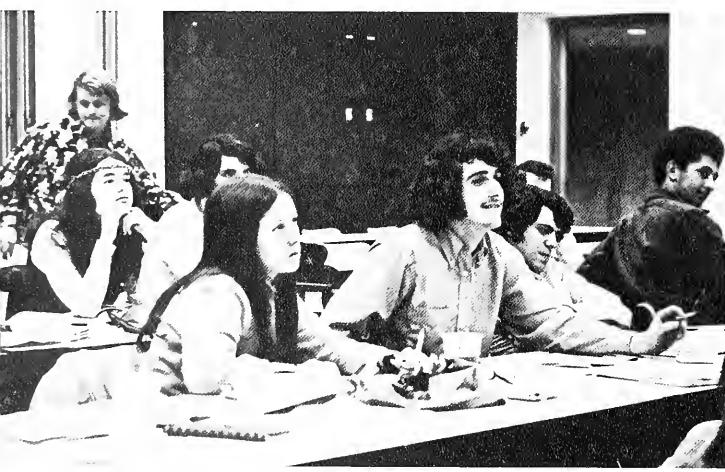

The fact that the students finally had their own lawyer resulted in the saving of a lot of money and a lot of reputations. In a society where the law is King, the students found someone who could reason with it on its own terms.

Richard Howland, Attorney for Students

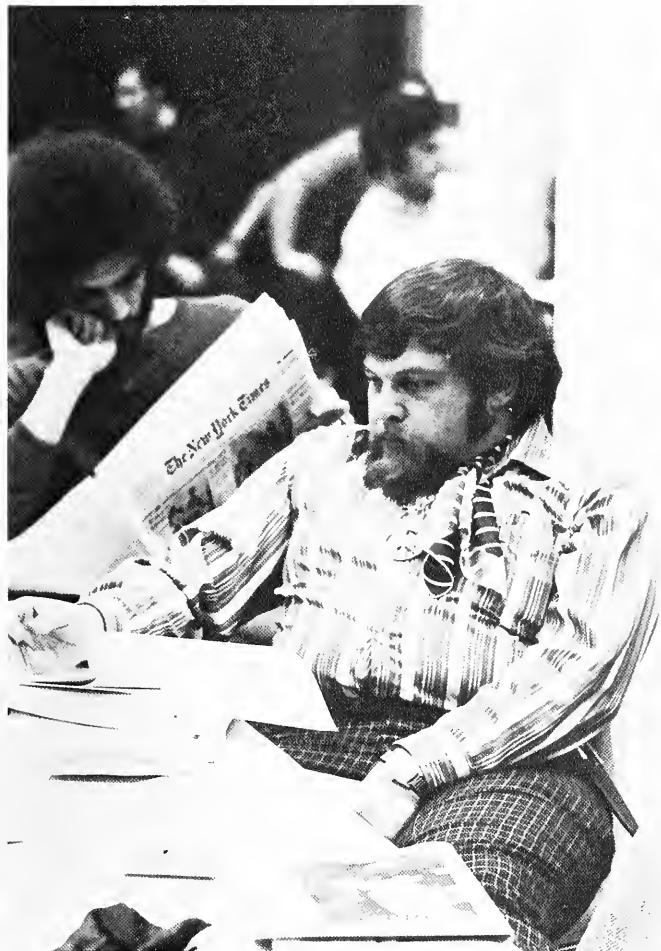

In his role as Senate President, Glenn Elters also served as a University Trustee last year, providing the Board with immediate access to student opinion, and giving the student body at least one small voice on the Board.

As the year drew to a close, the Senate was working on a proposal which would unite the tri-Senate University government (Student, Faculty, and Graduate senates) into a University wide senate. This new governance proposal, if enacted, would unite all decision making procedures on campus, provide for better representation of all campus groups, and form a united power base from which to approach the Board of Trustees.

Glenn Elters, Senate President

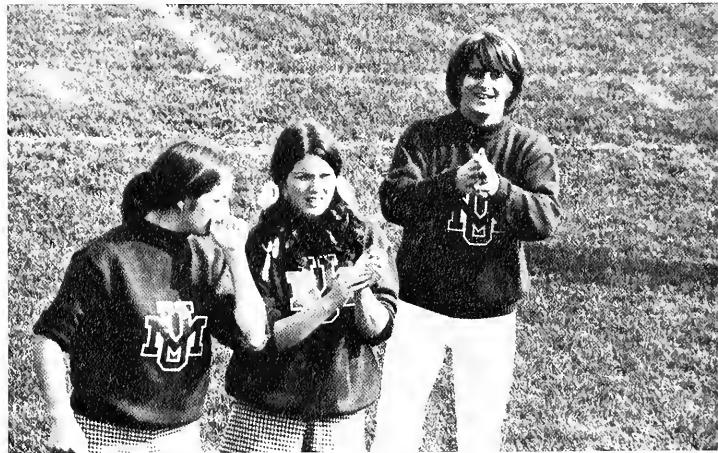

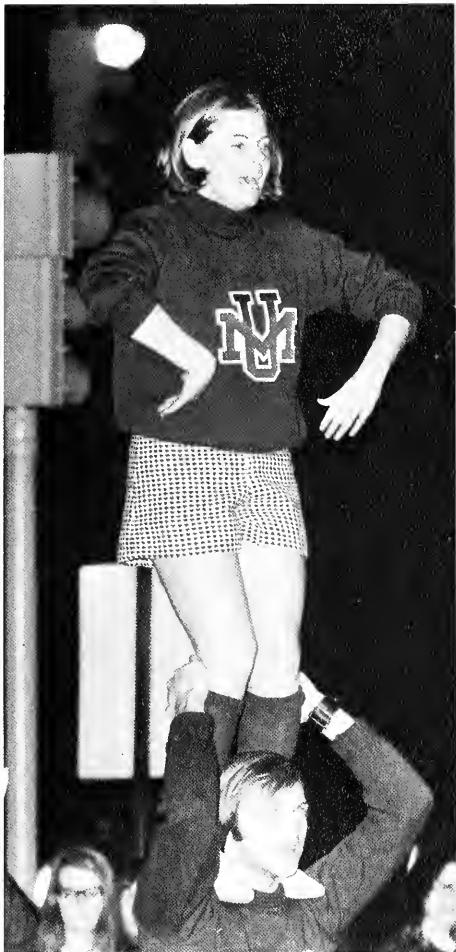

So the Student Senate, often called self-righteous, often resented as a group of elitists, often charged with being out of touch with the students it represents, the Senate, much maligned and not infrequently laughed at, ended the year planning to sacrifice its very existence for its belief in a University-wide Senate and a better campus governance system.

CHEERLEADERS

The cheerleaders once again provided a spark for enthusiasm at the football and basketball games. In 1971 they built a more sophisticated squad, and initiated new dance routines to occupy the fans during half time and time outs.

Although the cheerleaders did not summon up as much spirit as they once did, they continued to put everything into their performances.

MARCHING BAND

The UMass Marching Bands once again provided the half-time entertainment during the 1970-71 football games. Their rousing renditions of popular songs, however, did not help in rousing the spirits of the fans. The band was merely accepted, rather than eagerly anticipated. This was not the fault of the band, itself. The audience seemed to have outgrown the tradition of listening to music and watching choreographed drummers marching around during half time.

CHORALE

The University Chorale, under the direction of Dr. Richard du Bois, provided experienced singers with an outlet for their talents in the performance of high quality choral literature.

During 1970, aside from numerous concerts in the Five-College area, the Chorale undertook a three week singing tour of Europe. In the spring of 1971, they made a week long tour of the Midwestern United States.

In all of its concerts, the Chorale proved their reputation as one of the finest choral ensembles in New England.

ORCHESTRA

During 1971, the University Orchestra continued in its tradition of providing the University area with stimulating renditions of the classics of musical history. Under the direction of Ronald Steele, the Orchestra proved itself capable of competing with orchestras of much larger institutions.

YAHOO

Yahoo, the UMass humor magazine, once again shook the world. Publishing three times during 1971, the magazine met with a general nod of approval both by the students and the administration. For the first time, Yahoo used a two-color process, thereby adding a little more life to the satirical copy.

The State Legislature was not heard from during the year, but the past Yahoo-Legislature conflicts remained fresh in the memories of the seniors.

Daily Collegian

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

The COLLEGIAN, New Englands largest daily college newspaper, continued to provide excellent service to the University community.

The staff wasn't exactly Pulitzer Prize material, but everyone did his best, and the result was a sixteen page rag made to be read over breakfast, over that 9:05 German class, or during those little breaks in the afternoon.

If you were after cartoons, there was B.C., PEANUTS, and THE WIZARD OF ID. If it was crossword puzzles that turned you on, you could try to decipher the daily square on the second to the last page (What's a six-letter word for "extinct woodchuck"?). Your future was amazingly predetermined by the Daily Personal Horoscope. If you wanted to complain or to praise, the Letters to the Editor page was available to you.

Filling up all the other blank spaces was something called "news". National and International news was provided by Associated Press. Local and University news was provided by the news staff. It was an experience to be a staff member. Whether it was a Student Senate meeting or the Southwest bomb scares, the coverage was exciting.

The Collegian Staff, for all its informality behind the scenes, produced an excellent product over the course of the year.

Rich Hanson, Editor-in-Chief

Dave Williams, Managing Editor

Al Oickle, Managing Editor of the GREENFIELD RECORDER, played an important but relatively unheralded part in the daily production of the COLLEGIAN. As Publications Advisor, Oickle was responsible for adding that professional touch to the COLLEGIAN. Whether it was in the weekly staff rap sessions, or working individually with staff members, he pointed out the deficiencies in articles and tried to explain more desirable alternatives. Changing a word, switching a sentence, his help did not seem to be of immediately great magnitude, but without it the COLLEGIAN would not have been quite so readable or entertaining.

SPECTRUM

Paul Wilson

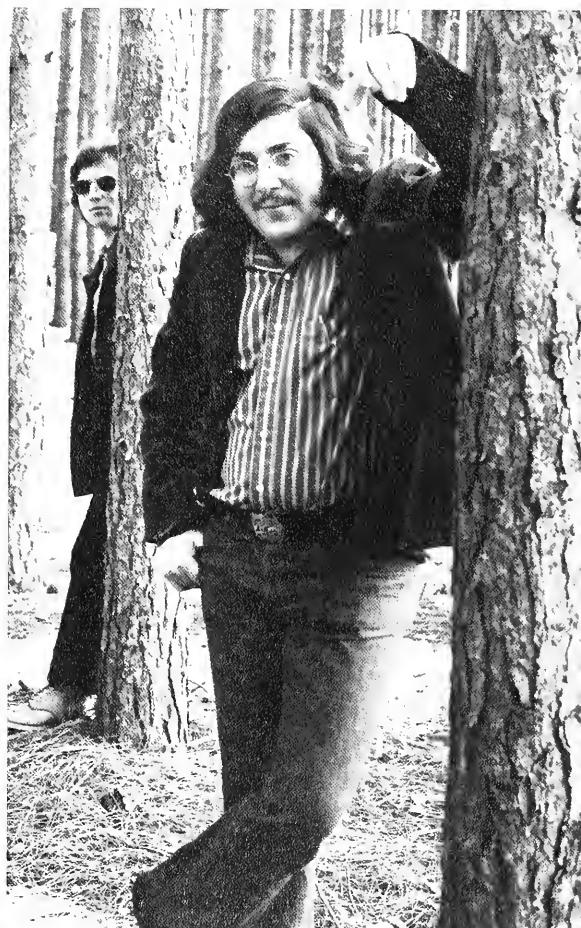

SPECTRUM, the undergraduate literary magazine had the most successful year of its relatively short existence in 1970-71. The February 1971 issue won the much coveted Printing Industry of America's North American Graphic Arts Award for graphic excellence in the highly competitive one- and four-color category. It is rare for a collegiate publication to win this award, since it is basically a competition for professional designers and advertising agencies.

Roger Bacon

Suzanne Belanger

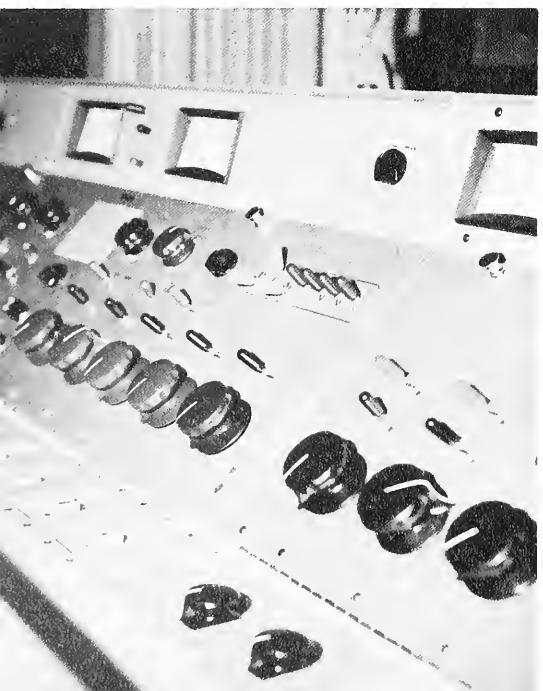

Ron Slate

Peter Siegel

Articles from the magazine also appeared in such publications as CHELSEA, THE TRANSATLANTIC REVIEW, and THE NATIONAL LAMPOON, along with a Harper and Row anthology of fine young writers. It was, in all, a very gratifying year for the SPECTRUM staff, and the SPECTRUM audience.

WMUA

WMUA, at 91.1 FM, provided the students with a diverse program of music, news and discussion. If you wanted Led Zeppelin, the Supremes, or Firesign Theater, WMUA was the station to listen to. They also took cuts from obscure albums which were never heard from before and, most often, would never be heard from again. WMUA was run by students, and as a result it lacked that professional polish found in most radio broadcasts. That was fortunate.

RSO OFFICE

The Student Senate set the budget for all of the Recognized Student Organizations, but it was the administrative staff of the R.S.O. office that saw that all the bills were paid and that all accounts were correct.

Not many undergrads are aware that the R.S.O. office exists, let alone the significance of its vital functions. Performing the thankless busy work without which the whole student activities program would probably collapse, the people of the R.S.O. office have done, and continue to do a commendable job.

APO, — the national men's service fraternity, and GSS — the national women's sorority sponsored diverse functions during 1970-71. Among Apo's activities were the annual Las Vegas Nite, and participation in the Amherst Fair. Along with this, the brothers of Apo donated their time to play basketball at the Bechertown State School, and to be "foster big brothers" for orphans being prepared for adoption.

GSS, too, provided their services in social functions. These included working on the Bloodmobile, sponsoring the book exchange and ushering at University Theatre productions.

It was a relief to know that social action wasn't limited to such groups as Mobe and CEQ.

MAROON KEYS

Maroon Keys, the Sophomore Men's Honor Society, continued in its tradition of giving aid to the incoming freshman class during 1970-71. Working closely with the Scrolls, the Keys sponsored the Freshman Queen Contest and the 11th Hour Lecture Series. They also assisted in Freshman Orientation, Convocation, and Registration.

SCROLLS

The Scrolls, the Sophomore Women's Honor Society, in addition to co-sponsoring the Freshman Dance with the Maroon Keys, also had a very successful penny candy sale. They ushered for the DVP lectures and held two Whist tournies.

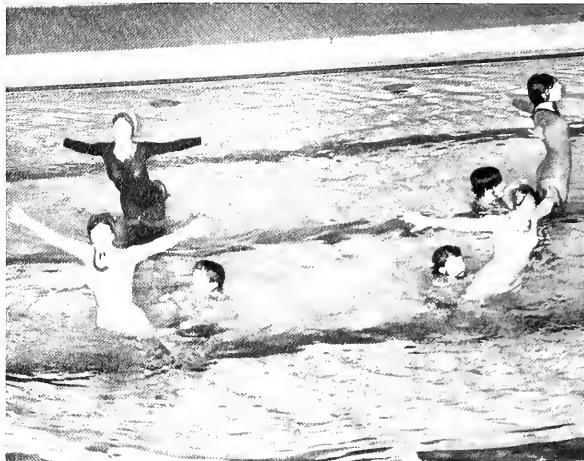

Together, the Maroon Keys and the Scrolls reached out a hand for the lost freshmen to grasp in the first few months of their college experience.

NAIADS

As the University's synchronized swimming group, Naiads Aquatic Art Group aimed for the development of specific themes through creative aquatic movement.

In 1971 Naiads presented their annual show of water acrobatics. In addition to this, they also travelled to the Convention of the Association of Synchronized Swimming for College Women and to the IAAA Eastern Symposium.

All in all, they made a pretty big splash.

PRECISIONETTES

Precisionettes, the women's drill team at the University, were most appreciated for their routines during half-time at the football games. Their male counterpart, the Flying Redmen, were forced to terminate their activities on campus, due to the ban placed upon firearms by the Board of Trustees.

The Student Senate, in drawing up the 1971-72 SATF budget, refused to finance the Precisionettes, thereby casting a heavy shadow over their future.

ARCON

ARCON, the honorary men's guide service, provided campus tours for understandably confused freshmen, and many other visiting groups over the course of the year. The ever increasing size of the University was brought to terms by the ARCON's for the lost visitors.

SU/CC GOVERNING BOARD

With the opening of the new Murray D. Lincoln Campus Center, the Board grew in scope as well as in name: Student Union/Campus Center Governing Board. The Board insured that the S.U./C.C. Complex was responsive to the needs of the University community by providing appropriate facilities, activities and services. The Board consisted of undergraduates, graduates students, Stockbridge students, faculty and alumni, with guidance from the staff of the complex.

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES NIGHT

University Activities Night, a new name for Student Leaders Night, seemed to be the same product in a different package. Class officers, Student Senate officers, publications editors, organization heads, droned on . . . justifying their actions, inactions, and even their existence during the past year. The high point of the evening was the presentation of the Metawampe Award to Professor Lawrence Johnson.

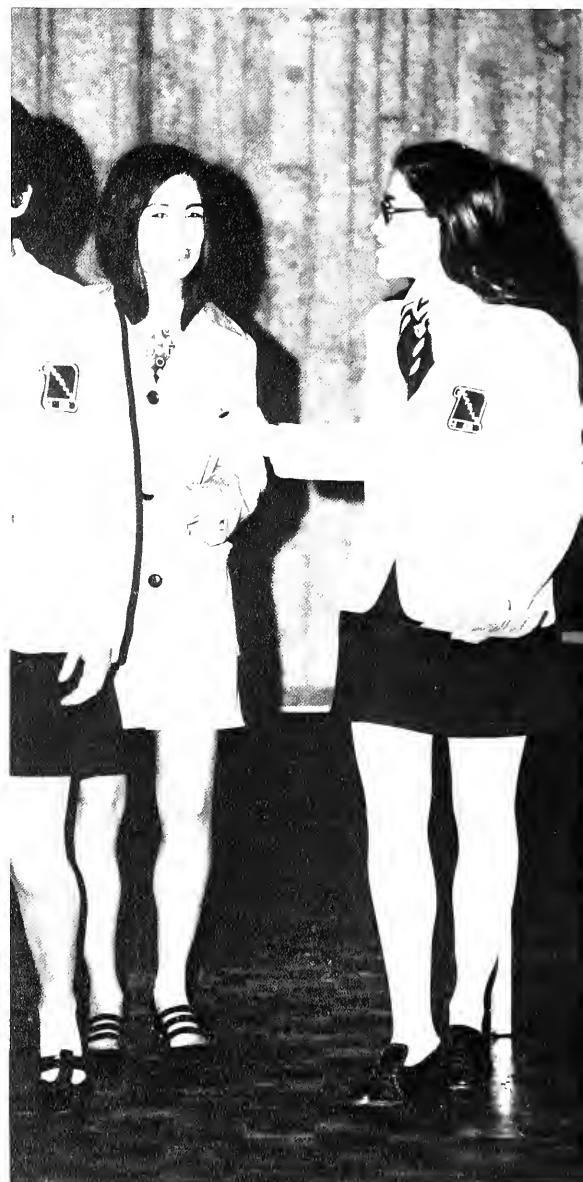

People who give outstanding service to the University community should receive acknowledgement from their peers. The points in question are: Who are the best people to make the selections, and what criteria should be used. The concept is sound, but the actual event has left something to be desired.

The 1971 Metwampe Award recipient chosen by students for outstanding service to the University community, was Prof. Lawrence Johnson, Asst. Dean of the School of Business. Professor Johnson was chosen because of his selfless contributions to the CCEBS program, outstanding performance as an eductor, and service to the university in general.

The room is filled with a blue haze, and Zappa is destroying the Woofers and Tweeters in the background. Enter: The Students, wearing their bell-bottomed jeans which have been carefully washed several times before use (to give that Freaky, worn-out-been-through-a-hell-of-a-lot-believe-me Look). Their tie-dye shirts display an originality not often found in todays habillements (Wouldn't that automatic tie-dye machine over in Tokyo be proud!)

The first Student speaks through his beard:

" . . . Yeah, that's cool. Far out! Well . . ." (carefully portraying the role of Stoned Student Who Is With It that he has so carefully practiced), " . . . anyways, ma-a-an, watcha wanna do today?"

The second Student ponders for a well-timed moment.

Rubs his stubble.

"There's a Student Senate meeting we . . ."

"What's a Student Senate"?

"Nevermind. There's a recruitment meeting for the Collegian . . ."

"What's a Collegian"?

"It's that paper we spread on the floor for the cat".

"Who'd wanna work for something like that"?

"Well, we could always . . ."

"Let's get stoned".

"Yeah".

"Yeah".

"Then we can go see that play at Bartlett".

"Yeah".

"Or pick up a couple chicks".

"Yeah".

"Wow!" (holding his breath) "What a rush"!

"Hey, let's not go anywhere. It's too much of a hassle."

"Yeah".

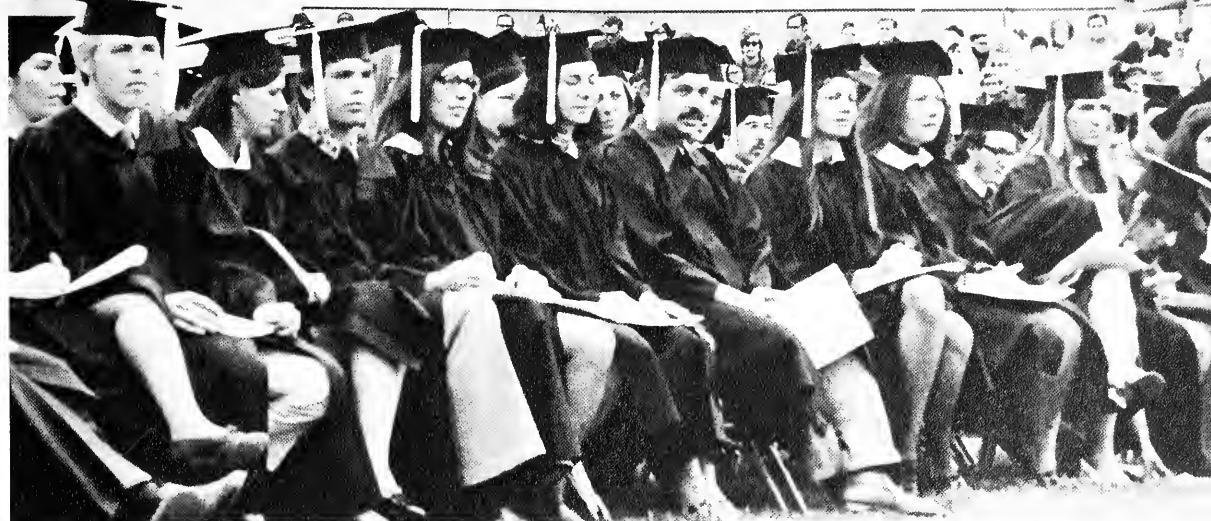

It's Cool. It's Sad.

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS SENIORS INDEX UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS INDEX

SENIOR DAY 1971

AH, YES! THE GRADUATING CLASSES' ANNUAL SPRING RITUAL. BEER,

NOSTALGIA, AND A FEW LAUGHS; ALL UNDER DEAN FIELDS' APPROVING EYE.

A FRIVOLOUS GET-TOGETHER OF FRIENDS AND STRANGERS – KNOWN AS "CLASSMATES."

A TIME TO REFLECT ON WHAT YOU HAD DONE AND WHAT YOU WERE GOING TO DO.

COMMENCEMENT 1971

SENATOR EDWARD BROOKE

What can you say about a commencement ceremony held in the rain? It wasn't very stirring except perhaps to the proud parents of the graduates.

It was anticlimactic, especially to the current breed of college graduates, who are more aware of the harsh realities of the world beyond the campus than were their predecessors.

Senator Brooke, to his credit, was aware of this and made no attempt at rousing rhetoric in his keynote address. Instead, he offered a method for improving communications between people which would hopefully alleviate some of our nation's problems. His message, a variation of Love Story's central theme, was "love is being able to say you are sorry."

As the rain continued and the ceremony ground toward its conclusion, a democratic voice vote was taken in favor of a shortened degree conferring ritual. President Wood conferred "the appropriate degrees from the appropriate departments on the appropriate graduates," and everyone went home.

THE RAIN CAME DOWN, THE UMBRELLAS WENT UP AND RESTLESSNESS SET IN.

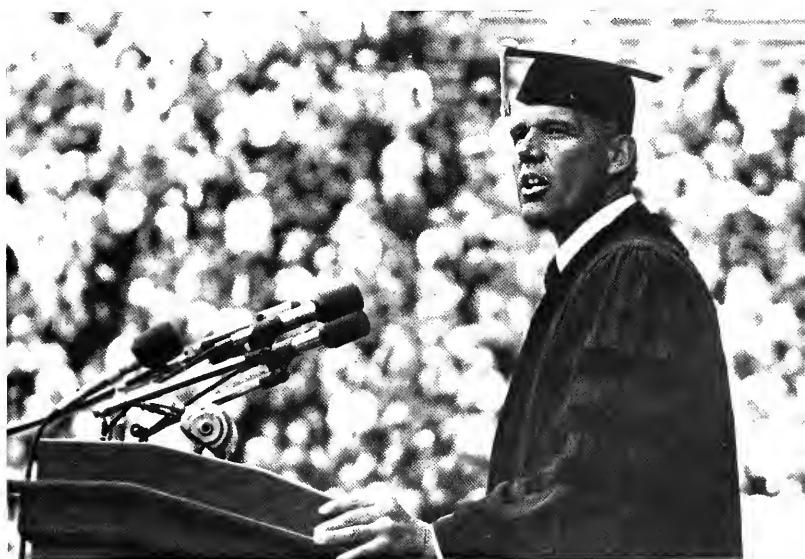

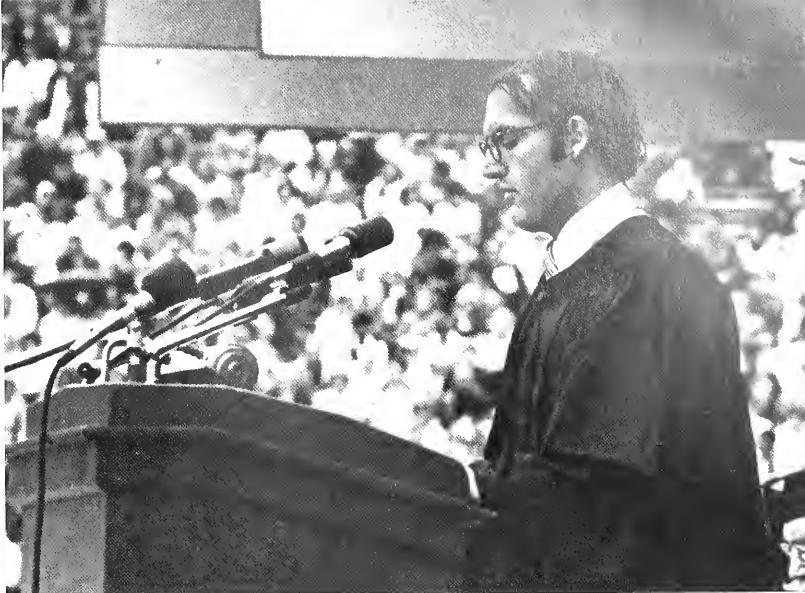

... you have seen too much to be persuaded as easily as my generation was that the world is waiting to welcome you. — that your dreams all will come true, that your idealism will be rewarded.

To say such things in the spring of your senior year, would mock the memories of your freshmen spring — scarred as it was by gunshots in Memphis and Los Angeles and by rioting in the Nation's ghettos. It would deny the experience of your sophomore year — when turmoil raged on so many of our campuses. And it would ignore what you learned in your Junior year — the year of Kent State and Jackson State and Cambodia.

But while this may not be a time for sweeping, confident rhetoric, neither is it a time for stopping the world or for trying to get off. What this is, as I see it, is a time for going on.

What prevents us from coming together, is our own self-containment, our sense of pride of being right. Whether we are talking about individuals, about social and political groups, or about nations themselves, the un-readiness to say: 'I am wrong. I'm sorry,' underlies many of our most difficult problems.

— Senator Edward Brooke.

FOUR YEARS, EIGHT SEMESTERS, A DEGREE . . .

The 1971 INDEX represents the efforts of the editors and staff to give the student body a yearbook more in line with their changing values and lifestyle.

We have tried to record as many events as possible in an objective manner. Campus groups with different views were given the opportunity to tell their own story if they so desired.

However, in these turbulent times there are some things that we could not let pass without critical comment. These areas, in which we editorialized, should be self-evident.

Quality was the prime criteria when selecting photographs, writing copy, and creating a dynamic design for the book. If we have fallen short of our goal, it is not for lack of effort. Many people put many selfless hours into this publication.

As in most group efforts, some people give more of themselves and deserve special recognition. Barbara Brecher, Managing Editor, did a lot of work, chased loose ends and pointed out my unsound decisions (which were rarely final). George Williams, Consulting Editor, was the cool head when things got hectic and lent much sound advice. Alan Marcus, Business Manager, handled the finances single-handed; and without Al there just wouldn't have been a yearbook. Roger Reid and John Goldsmith, Co-Photo Editors, got those photo assignments covered no matter how bizarre and kept the equipment together with paper clips and rubber bands.

As for myself, I enjoyed it. There were frustrating moments, but that's true of all worthwhile ventures. I think yearbooks are worthwhile; I hope you enjoy this one. If you don't, you have the power to change it or eliminate it.

Peace,

Thomas O. Leavitt
